Fulfilling a dream

By Lisa Boudreau

When Dwight Davis was growing up he didn't want to be a firefighter or a policeman. His dream was to be a military test pilot.

"Where I grew up it was hard not to think about flying," he said.

Mr. Davis, of 43 Oriole Drive, was raised in Dayton, Ohio, near Wright Patterson Air Force Base. There he saw "almost everything the Air Force flew" across the skies of his neighborhood, he said.

So when Mr. Davis turned 40 last year, he decided it was "now or never" and enrolled in flight lessons at Four Star Aviation in Lawrence. He's now in the mid-Merrimack Valley.

I've flown on commercial jets nearly a dozen times so I thought I was prepared to go up in a Cessna 172 four-seater. But, when I saw the plane, it looked no larger than my grandmother's old Mercury Cougar and the metal shell of the aircraft looked no sturdier than aluminum foil.

What had I gotten myself - us - into?

As the student pilot, Dwight Davies, his flight instructor, Laurie Pederson, our photographer and I walked out onto the air strip at Lawrence Municipal Airport, I broke into a cold sweat even though the air coming up from the black top was well over 100 degrees. Gulp!

My fears were a bit allayed when Laurie and Dwight began their preflight checklist and a sense of order was restored. Matt was methodically changing camera lenses and taking pictures. I checked to see that my pen would write.

The ink was flowing. I looked for other things to occupy my time before takeoff. I checked in the back seat of the plane and was surprised to see nothing more than a large trunk space.

"Oh, don't worry," Laurie said. "The two front seats push forward and you'll have plenty of room."

One more item to check, Laurie announced, as she hopped up the side of the plane and opened a latch.

"Just want to make sure we have enough gas," she said, her reflective sunglasses hiding what I hoped must be a mischievous twinkle in her eyes.

"Gotcha - just kidding. There's plenty," she said.

I was glad I was wearing dark glasses because I didn't want her to see the panicked look in my eyes. I glanced at Matt. He seemed to share my feelings. Whew!

All four of us climbed in. Laurie and Dwight fidgeted with a some knobs, levers and buttons and the radio cracked a few inaudible words. Dwight requested and received permission to take off.

The propeller whizzed and choked. The plane's body vibrated a little as the wheels moved up down the runway, and it quickly picked up speed. I looked out the window, down at the ground and the wheels were already off the ground.

You know the old song "Up, Up And Away"? It was running through my mind as I watched the tree tops disappear from the cockpit window. I looked down at the communities below, and the first thing that hit me wasn't what you might imagine. It wasn't that cars looked so small or that the houses looked like Monopoly pieces.

What I couldn't get over was how many backyard swimming pools I saw. Maybe it was because the plane's cabin was hot and I was more than nervous, but the water in those pools looked so cool and so blue.

Woosh, dip, kerplunk, giggle, giggle. The plane felt like its shocks were all of a sudden too pliable. Air pockets, I was told. Right, it felt like King Kong had just grabbed the plane for a closer look.

"Sorry Matt," I said as I removed my nails from his flesh. I repeated that phrase more than a few times as King Kong dropped by for more visits.

While Dwight practiced maneuvering "S" turns and tight circles at 130 mph, I practiced concentrating on the horizon. Next, we had a quick and rather smooth landing and takeoff at Plum Island airport, more practice for Dwight.

Then we flew over the skies of Andover, where my attention was diverted from my own mortality, to identifying familiar landmarks and trying to pick out neighbors' houses.

We circled one more time and then headed back to the airport. I strained my eyes to see the black-topped runway. It got closer and closer - and I got happier and happier. Touchdown was a little frightening. The winds were a bit strong, but we made it. I never doubted for a second that we would!

NEWS IN BRIEF

AHS to push for two assistant principals

By Lisa Boudreau

Timothy Thomas, the new Andover High School principal, will go before the School Committee Tuesday, Aug. 27, to defend maintaining the status quo of two assistant principals at the school.

Committee member Richard Hubbell believes another staff configuration at Andover High would be less costly than restoring the $58,000 position recently vacated when the committee chose Mr. Thomas to replace retiring Principal Wilbur Hixon.

Currently, Steve Richardsqn is the only assistant principal employed by the high school. He is in charge of attendance and discipline.

The School Committee told Superintendent Mark McQuillan it may not fill the position if funding falls short. The job is now internally posted with a conditional provision noting the job is subject to funding.

Dr. McQuillan told the committee at its July 23 meeting that he believes a second assistant principal would mean Mr. Thomas would be free to pursue recommendations made a few months ago by an outside accreditation committee.

Mr. Hixon and Mr. Richardson were also invited to the Aug. 27 meeting to present arguments for hiring a second assistant principal for the 1,200-student high school.

Andover is now 'bike friendly'

Responding to suggestions for making Andover "bicycle friendly," the town has installed several permanent sturdy bicycle racks.

One is near the bandstand in The Park on Bartlet and Chestnut streets. This provides a handy parking place for people who bicycle to events in the park and at Memorial Auditorium.

Another is in the town parking lot next to Olde Andover Village. It is on the other side of the stone wall next to the sidewalk. This will be handy for people shopping in the area.

The third is at the corner of Bartlet and Park streets in the Park Street Village parking lot.

The Department of Public Works has realigned hazardous storm sewer grates on Andover Street between Dascumb Road and Argilla Road.

The DPW will continue to gradually realign hazardous grates if their whereabouts are reported. If you know of such a grate, call any of these members of the bicycle committee and identify the exact location: Carole Chanler,

If you have suggestions for locations for additional bicycle racks or if you would like to be a member of the Andover Bicycle Committee, call the above numbers.

Masons plan blood drive

One of the Massachusetts Masons' statewide blood drives will come to Andover this summer.

The blood drive will be held Thursday, Aug. 15, at the Masonic Hall as part of the three-day series of drives.

Donations will be accepted from 2 to 8 p.m. at the hall, located at 7 High St.

Summer is historically the season when the blood supply is at its lowest level, because many donors are on vacation, according to Deborah Driskell, a spokeswoman for the American Red Cross.

This year the downturn in the economy has further decreased donations, she said.

"Businesses have closed and others have relocated, resulting in a decline in available donors," Ms. Driskell said.

The statewide drives are sponsored by the Grand Lodge of Masons in conjunction with the American Red Cross Blood Services' northeast region.

For more information, call the American Red Cross at (800) 922-4376, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Children hop for Easter Seals

Youngsters from the ANSC Childcare Corp. in Andover raised $654.75 in an Easter Seal Hop-n-ing to help people with disabilities.

The children spent the previous week learning about disabilities - what causes them, how disabilities affect people's everyday lives and the equipment they use to cope.

Each child secured pledges for every hop performed during a three-minute Hop-n-ing.

Easter Seal services include summer camp, therapeutic swim programs, home-health care, physical, occupational and speech therapy, equipment loan, support groups for people recovering from strokes and information and referral services.

Last year more than 12,000 children across Massachusetts learned about disabilities and hopped for Easter Seals, raising $255,000. The Hop-n-ing is sponsored by TJX Cos. Inc.

dle of completing 20 hours of flying with an instructor, after which he'll need another 20 of solo flights.

His brother-in-law is a corporate pilot in Ohio and flies jets and helicopters for a living, but Mr. Davis said that isn't his ambition.

"Maybe in another life, but not this time around. Right now I enjoy it as a hobby," he said.

Learning to fly is an expensive hobby. It costs about $3,000 from start to finish to get a pilots' license for a single-engine plane. The Cessna 152 that Four Star Aviation students fly cost anywhere from $17,000 for a used model to $50,000 for a luxury one.

Mr. Davis, an air-conditioning and heating contractor, believes he wouldn't enjoy flying as much if it were his job. Knowing he had to fly would be an "extra load" on his mind, he said. Right now if the weather isn't right he can choose not to fly, he said.

At 41, Mr. Davis believes he has the proper respect for procedure and details as well as a healthy dose of fear to approach flying responsibly.

Responsibly, and with close attention to detail is exactly how he prepares for a flight out of Lawrence airport. He and Four Star flight instructor Laurie Pederson have spent more than 40 hours studying on the ground and in flight simulation before they began flying.

"One of the hardest things for people to understand about flying is that a plane is three dimensional," she said.

Landings, Ms. Pederson points out, are the toughest. But, learning the different functions of pitch (direction of the plane's nose) and engine power are difficult for many would-be pilots, she said. Many hours of ground study on the theories of flight are needed before a pilot instinctively knows what pitch and power are needed to direct the plane, she said.

Ms. Pederson, whose father was involved in the non-flight operation of commercial airlines, has been flying for more than 10 years. After training in aeronautics in the U.S. Army four years after high school, she received her pilot's license after her enlistment ended. Three years ago she received her instructor's certification and has been teaching at Four Star ever since.

She said she enjoys teaching and recently upgraded her instructor's license to include multi-engine planes that are more difficult to master.

"Almost anyone can learn how to fly," Ms. Pederson said.

"Some people think they have to be special to learn and that's not true. I think that out of 10 people who

A woman at that residence had called Andover police at 3:28 a.m. on Saturday and asked them to remove Mr. Lombardi from the house.

The woman allegedly reported Mr. Lombardi was drunk and pushing her around. Upon arrival of officers, Mr. Lombardi ran into the woods. The officers took a shotgun that was in the house and brought the woman to the station.

According to Lt. Don Mooers, an emergency restraining order was taken out by the woman to keep Mr. Lombardi away from the home. The woman was then brought home.

At 5:36 a.m., a call came into the police station asking for help, but no name or location was given. Officers, acting on a hunch, went back to the Dallan Road residence just in case and found Mr. Lombardi had returned to the house and he was arrested.

Tuesday, July 23 - At 11:50 a.m., Brian M. Ouellette, 27, of 77 South Union St. in Lawrence, was arrested on Interstate 93 and charged on an Andover warrant for breaking and entering and larceny over $250.

Carter, 31, of 373 South Main St., were arrested after they allegedly broke into Santina's Restaurant on South Main Street. The two men were allegedly driving a car loaded with food and had about $190 from the restaurant when they were stopped on South Main Street by Officer Richard Aumais after a report of suspicious activity near the restaurant.

The pair were charged with breaking and entering with the intent to commit a felony, larceny of property over $250, and possession of burglar tools. Mr. Carter was also charged on a Peabody State Police traffic warrant and Mr. Noonan was charged with driving after revocation of his license.

Saturday, July 27 - At 8:21 p.m., Jason M. Ard, 18, of 20 Bellevue St. in Lawrence, was arrested on Beacon Street and charged with operating after suspension of his license and operating an unregistered and uninsured car.

AMERICAN
SOCIETY

Marilyn Brody, at left, and Louise Bloom, both of Andover, were honored recently for their service with the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division.

Two honored for volunteer work

Two Andover residents, Louise Bloom and Marilyn Brody, were among the more than 150 volunteers who answered 9,400 phone calls from April 22 through May 3 for the American Cancer Society's SkinSavers '91 campaign. They were honored recently at a volunteer appreciation luncheon.

The American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division and the American Academy of Dermatology sponsored SkinSavers '91 to reduce spiraling skin cancer rates through prevention and early detection. Free skin exams were offered by more than 170 dermatologists across the state. The number of calls was up more than 50 percent over 1990.

Phone volunteers asked questions about a caller's skin sensitivity to the sun and any spots or moles causing concern. People with risk factors who had not seen a dermatologist for more than a year were eligible for the free skin exams.

Holy Family names two new trustees

Judge John E. Fenton Jr., chairman of the board of Holy Family Hospital, announced the appointment of two new trustees at Holy Family Hospital.

Edwin D. Duvall and Michael J. Meyers were appointed to three-year terms. Mr. Duvall, a resident of Salem, N.H., is president of Lakeside Insurance Agency in Wakefield and Salem, N.H.

Mr. Meyers, who lives in Andover, is deputy executive director and chief operating officer of the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency, where he has been employed since 1989.

Local business people make news

Richard L. Sumberg of Andover recently attended the Chubb LifeAmerica business and education seminar at the insurer's corporate headquarters in Concord, N.H.

Mr. Sumberg is an independent financial adviser and branch manager of Chubb Securities Corporation at 15 Railroad St.

He is a graduate of Boston College and the Suffolk University Graduate School of Business. Mr. Sumberg provides financial products and services to individual and business clients.

The topics covered at the three-day seminar included business insurance markets, tax law changes, and The Hampshire Plan, a program that combines the sale of life insurance with mutual funds, only available through Chubb LifeAmerica and its wholly-owned broker-dealer, Chubb Securities Corporation.

Pamela Lebowitz, owner of Century 21 Minuteman, 2 Elm Square, has been selected by the Resolution Trust Corporation to act as a listing broker for property under its direction.

The Resolution Trust Corporation was established in 1989 by the United States Congress to "resolve the savings and loan crisis." Ms. Lebowitz will market RTC properties in the Andover area.

Brickstone Properties recently leased 4,000 square feet of space at Brickstone Square to Elizabeth Grady Face First. The company headquarters occupy the 10th floor of the tower, the highest elevation in the Merrimack Valley. Glen Rhuda of Peter Elliot & Co. represented the tenant in the negotiations.

Elizabeth Grady has 26 skin care centers staffed by professional aestheticians in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Hampshire. The centers specialize in facials, make up application, skin care consultation and treatment, massage and skin care and make-up products.

Steven Druth, marketing director for Brickstone Properties, says that small businesses are rounding out the one-million-square-foot development. "Elizabeth Grady Face First joins a growing family of small businesses that are taking advantage of Brickstone Square's big business atmosphere and amenities and our ability to subdivide to spaces as small as 1,500 square feet," he said.

Andover Bank notes more loss

Andover Bancorp Inc., parent company of Andover Savings Bank, expects to add approximately $16 million to its provision for possible loan losses for the second quarter of 1991. After the provision and allowing for charge-offs, the reserve for possible loan losses is expected to amount to $26 million as of June 30. This addition to the reserve will result in a second-quarter and year-to-date loss.

Non-accrual loans totaled approximately $58 million and other real estate owned approximated $23 million at June 30, 1991. This compares to $33.6 million and $25 million, respectively, at March 31.

The expected reserve balance of $26 million at June 30, which is after net charge-offs and additions, is equal to approximately 44 percent of non-accruing loans and 6 percent of loans outstanding. Total assets at quarter end will approximate $642 million; the capital to assets ratio will be approximately 10 percent, well above regulatory requirements.

Gerald T. Mulligan, chief executive officer, said, "The bank is now experiencing the full impact of the real estate loan problems that have plagued New England's banking industry for the past two years. During the second quarter, the bank experienced a significant increase in non-accruing loans. In light of continuing uncertainty in the regional economy generally and the real estate market particularly, we have responded to the growth in non-accruing loans by a corresponding increase in the loan loss reserve. While we believe that the level of the reserve is adequate, the continued appropriateness of the reserve is, of course, dependent on future conditions and under continual review."

Andover Bancorp Inc. is the parent bank holding company of Andover Savings Bank, a Massachusetts-chartered savings bank organized in 1834, headquartered in Andover.

Decorator adds to Maine showhouse

Local interior designer Carole Kaplan, ASID, is participating in the Old York Historical Show House "Rooms With A View" on Cape Neddick in York, Maine. Showhouse opened July 27 and runs through Aug. 18.

Twenty-four interior and landscape designers bring this turn-of-the-century summer cottage back to life. Located on six acres of rolling waterfront property, Grey Stone was the site of the 1989 filming of the movie Bed & Breakfast starring Colleen Dewhurst, Roger Moore and Talia Shire.

Ms. Kaplan, New England president of the American Society of Interior Designers, will lead a panel of four Grey Stone designers who will explain why fantasy is a theme of decorating a show house. Ms. Kaplan is the president of Two By Two Interior Design, Ltd. at 348 North Main St. She and her family live at 1 Wintergreen Circle, and summer in Biddeford, Maine.

Ex-bank VP alleged to hold Swiss accounts

By Don Staruk

An Andover resident arrested two weeks ago and charged with embezzlement of funds from Shawmut Bank, and his wife, control "a substantial" sum of money - possibly in excess of $1 million - in Swiss bank accounts, according to federal investigators.

Peter J. Regan, 49, of 72 Salem St., was arrested by federal agents July 17 at his home and charged with embezzlement and misapplication of federally insured funds.

The alleged embezzlement was from a division of Shawmut that helped businesses work out bad loans. Mr. Regan was senior vice president of that division before he was fired July 5 in relation to the embezzlement investigation, according to reports.

Mr. Regan is free on $156,000 cash securing a $200,000 bond, and since his arrest has entered McLean Hospital, a private psychiatric hospital in Belmont, according to testimony during a bail hearing Monday, July 29.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ralph Boyd requested an increase in the bail to $500,000 securing a $5 million bond in light of the new information about the Swiss accounts.

Investigators have confirmed $283,000 was transferred to a Swiss account from an account Mr. Regan controlled at BayBank, according to Mr. Boyd. The balances in several Swiss accounts in the name of Mr. Regan and his wife, Julie Regan, contain additional substantial sums of money, according to the U.S. attorney.

Mrs. Regan has power of attorney on all the Swiss accounts, Mr. Boyd said.

In addition to his home here and one in New Hampshire, real estate controlled by Mr. Regan includes at least one condominium at Rowes Wharf in Boston and another in Naples, Fla., both in the name of his son. Mr. Regan also has $78,000 invested in another property in Naples, according to investigators.

Mrs. Regan has not been charged with any crime by federal authorities. Investigators have alleged that Mr. Regan also used the names of friends and acquaintances to set up bogus bank accounts without their knowledge.

The bail hearing was continued, and a probable cause hearing on the charges is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 6.

Vanguard company expands into Andover

Firm offers courses for employees in time management, selling, communication, and more

By Lisa Boudreau

Vanguard Leadership, a human development and personnel training company, is expanding its operations from Woburn to Andover and its surrounding communities. Mic and Margaret Adam, 700 Bullfinch Drive, a husband-and-wife, president-and-vice president team, opened Vanguard as a franchise of Leadership Management Inc., 18 months ago in Woburn.

They hope to attract the high-tech businesses along routes 495 and 93. Vanguard offers training courses for company employees such as time management, supervisory skills, selling strategies, dynamics of successful communication, leadership and motivation.

Most of the courses are taught in six to 12 lessons. Each lesson takes about two hours and includes a discussion of results and application of skills on a daily basis at work.

"Time management is skill. Not everyone is born knowing how to get more productivity out of their time," said Ms. Adam.

"Learning how to organize projects into what's imperative, things you must do, and what's important, things you'll get around to doing after finishing the imperative ones, can be learned," she said.

Another segment of their services includes profile evaluations for companies wishing to gain insight into the character of an individual and the traits common to top performers in certain fields. Companies use profiles in hiring and in making job assessments, Mr. Adam said. Profiles include a detailed analysis of 18 areas, including mental aptitudes and work habits. The analyses takes less than one hour and results are ready in a matter of minutes, he said.

The third area Vanguard focuses on is a new venture. They now offer a course for unemployed people to help them organize every aspect of their lives so they can concentrate on getting another job.

"We aren't an employment or referral company," Mr. Adam said.

People who are unemployed need to keep current on what is happening in their career field, he said. Unemployed people need to smooth out the other aspects of their lives so they can concentrate on getting a job, said Ms. Adam.

The need for this branch of their company came from Ms. Adam's own unemployment experiences. She was involved in the customer service field for 10 years and became unemployed about six months before she and her husband began Vanguard.

Mr. Adam said he is instituting a pilot program for six unemployed volunteers to sign up for Vanguard's program free of charge.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the unemployed pilot program should contact Vanguard's Andover office.

Town considers private landfill

By Don Staruk

While local landscapers are boosting prices to cover the cost of disposing wood, brush and grass clippings outside of Andover, the town is putting together a plan that could allow private operation of the recently closed Chandler Road landfill.

Bob McQuade, director of Public Works, was expecting last week to put a contract for operation of the landfill out to bid. But he wasn't sure when contract specifications would be ready.

The town landfill was closed at the end of June to cut its $50,700 operating cost from the town budget. But local landscapers, as well as residents, now have to pay to dispose their clippings, brush and loam out of town.

"We dumped there at least a couple times a day," said William Ferris, owner of Vale Landscaping, at 5 River Park Terrace in Ballardvale.

Mr. Ferris said that he's managed so far to find creative uses for clean fill, to keep down weeds in gardens or to build up the yard of one of his employees, but those options are limited.

"The problem is going to increase dramatically in the very near future," he said.

Jack Martellucci, owner of Pine Grove Tree and Landscaping, at 96 Bailey Road, agreed.

Summer is a slow time for dumping, but as people return from vacation and begin their fall cleanups, residents and landscapers will be hard pressed to dispose of the debris, Mr. Martellucci said.

The landscapers will actually be able to make money in the long run because disposal will become an added service, for an added fee, and actually already has.

"We're just passing that on to the customer," Mr. Martellucci said. "I've told the people I have to charge them more because I have to take it out of town."

He added that most landscapers feel the landfill could be run for less than the $50,000-plus the town cut from the budget, and added that residents will pay for disposal of the debris one way or another.

If residents put brush and leaves in their trash, the town will pay more in tipping fees at the incinerator in North Andover.

SCHOOLS

New immunization rules go into effect

One measles shot not enough

The Public Health Council has approved a revised set of school immunization regulations. Effective Aug. 1, a second dose of measles vaccine is mandatory before students can enter seventh grade or college.

Entry to kindergarten requires a minimum of four doses of diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis vaccine; three doses of trivalent polio vaccine; one dose of measles, mumps and rubella vaccine, given at or after 12 months of age; and a lead poisoning screening test.

All of the above must be verified by a physician's certificate.

In the past few years, outbreaks of measles have been reported nationwide. According to the Department of Public Health, the majority of these cases have occurred in individuals who have already been immunized, thus suggesting that a single dose of measles-mumps-rubella vaccine may not provide adequate protection against measles.

This is the reason for the new additional requirement of a second dose before the seventh grade. This will extend in 1996 to children seeking admission to grades seven through 12, said a spokesperson for the Department of Public Health.

Student's Ecuador trip earns her 2nd 'family'

Jennifer A. Lewis, daughter of George and Diane Lewis of 5 Bayberry Lane, is spending six weeks in Ecuador living with her "new" family through the Summer Abroad Program of the Experiment in International Living.

The Experiment is now in its 59th year of providing students with cross-cultural experiences. Ms. Lewis, a senior at Phillips Academy, will participate along with six other teen-agers from across the United States. She will live with the Francisco Anda family while in Quito, Ecuador.

The homestay is designed to allow students to learn about another culture by living it from day to day. Students emerge from the homestay with a second "family" and a new way of seeing the world.

Quito, the oldest capital city in South America, is almost 10,000 feet above sea level in the Andes Mountains. It features baroque churches, monasteries and an archaeological museum with a collection of pre-Colombian, Incan and Spanish artifacts.

She will then fly to the Galapagos Islands, 600 miles off Ecuador's Pacific coast. Ms. Lewis will sail to several of the 13 main islands to study some of the world's most spectacular and unspoiled ecosystems.

The Galapagos are home to colonies of marine iguanas, Antarctic penguins, blue-footed boobies, fur seals and sea lions, mangrove forests and flamingo lagoons. Ms. Lewis will hike to volcanic summits and will be able to visit the Charles Darwin Research Station, housed on Santa Cruz Island. She will also have the chance to see the famous 500-pound tortoises for which the islands are named.

There are 56 resident bird species on the islands, 27 of which can be found only there. From highlands to shorelines, almost 900 species of plants have been recorded, and 200 of those grow only in the Galapagos.

Ms. Lewis hopes to learn more about Latin American culture, improve her Spanish fluency and pursue her interest in international studies.

Young writers win Doherty contest

This year 245 Doherty Middle School students entered the literary contest for short stories and poems.

The purpose of the contest is to encourage writing and recognize young writers in their efforts, said Kathryn Crawford, the adviser to Doherty's student newspaper, which organized the contest.

"This year many entries reflected the troubled year internationally as students wrote around the topic of war and conflict. Other students indicated their concerns about the environment and wrote about their desires for a cleaner world and the preservation of endangered species," Ms. Crawford said.

Also, students expressed the challenges of the adolescent years in poems and stories.

Approximately 50 students helped judge the contest entries. Many students gave up after-school time to read entries and were very sensitive in their evaluations, Ms. Crawford said.

Doherty's student council provided $60 for the books that were given as prizes.

Here are the winners:

Sixth grade

Short stories: Hillary Dresser, first place; Matt Wessler, second place; Yoko Minagawa, third place.

Poems: Paul Pennelli, first place; Heather Rybicki, second place; Joel Skaliotis, third place.

Pingree assistant head chosen

Kathleen Dolan of Andover has been appointed assistant head at the Pingree School in South Hamilton. Ms. Dolan, who has been serving as academic dean as well as teaching English, began in her new position July 1.

She began her association with Pingree in 1976 as a teacher of French and Spanish. After two years she left the South Hamilton preparatory high school to pursue other interests, which included teaching at an international school in Caracas, Venezuela. Ms. Dolan returned to Pingree in 1982 and switched to teaching English and serving as a college counselor. She was appointed academic dean in 1986.

Incorporating a love of travel and foreign languages into her work, Ms. Dolan has taught in a few foreign countries. After her work at the school in Venezuela, she taught for four years at a private high school in Exeter, England.

Resident awarded for MS fund-raising efforts

Jeff Kearns, a student at Bancroft Elementary School, was one of 75 children from around the state recognized last month for his reading efforts to raise funds to help fight MS.

Jeff Kearns

The Massachusetts chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society honored 75 of the top Readathoners in the state recently at the Sheraton Tara

Hotel in Framingham. Each student invited to the awards party raised $500 or more for the Readathon Reading Program, a pledge-per-book fund-raising campaign.

"The ability to read well can make all the difference between a limited life and a life full of options. My grateful thanks to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society for doing so much to promote reading and literacy," said first lady Barbara Bush, who endorses the reading incentive program.

More than 4,000 school children in Massachusetts read 75,000 books and raised $250,000 so far. The money goes to help fund chapter services and national research programs. Top scholars were recognized for their efforts by Dick Albert, WCVB-TV Channel 5's meteorologist; Suzanne Bates, co-anchor of WBZ-TV's Live on 4; Boston Bruin Ray Bourque; New England Patriot John Stephens and Paul Sutton, WGGB-TV Channel 40 meteorologist.

Multiple sclerosis is the most common neurological disease of young adults. The course of the disease is unpredictable and symptoms vary among individuals. Often people with MS experience slurred speech, mobility problems and blurred vision. Nationally, 200 people are diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis each week and there are more than 6,000 people with MS in Massachusetts. MS is, at this time, neither curable nor preventable.

The Readathon is in its 17th year.

PALS students study Big Dig

Would you like to be a marine biologist, engineer, architectural designer, city planner or even a rat catcher?

These are the roles the PALS eighth-graders have been considering for the past few weeks. With their teachers they have been traveling to Boston to initiate a detailed study of the Central Artery and Third Harbor Tunnel, more commonly called "The Big Dig."

They met in the project headquarters July 10 to get an overview of the project and evaluate the different plans for interchanges on the room-sized model of the city. A walking tour of South Station area allowed the students to view the Central Artery and the great resources of Boston Harbor. Class time was spent considering and writing about conflicting issues which The Big Dig would create and solve.

The second field trip on July 17 took the eighth-graders to Spectacle Island in Boston Harbor. This small uninhabited island was a garbage dump for Boston for many years and will receive 3 million cubic yards of dirt from the project. With the advice of senior scientist Dr. Bruce Colvin the PALS students investigated the environmental issues and possible uses for the island once fill is added and the island is "capped off."

The students' ideas included making parks for people, erecting camping areas, bringing in more animals or leaving it for the animals already there.

The third trip to the Boston project on July 24 gave the students an opportunity to plan the uses of the land freed up by the depression of the Central Artery under the city.

The students met with the community liaisons of the project from the North End and Chinatown. The students' efforts at city planning will be continued when the tutoring program of PALS resumes during the school year.

"We hope this is going to be an ongoing communication," said the Rev. Richard Gross, PALS organizer. "It's great for the kids to see the incredible number of job opportunities a project like this involves."

PALS Summer 1991 Opportunity Program is a working partnership between Leonard Middle School of Lawrence and P.A. The teachers and teaching partners are from the academy, Lawrence public schools, Lawrence High School and Andover High School.

The summer program is a four-week-long session of tutoring in basic skills and enrichment for students entering the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in the Leonard School.

The PALS eighth-graders' field trip focus each summer will be a continuing investigation and documentation of the progress of the "Big Dig."

Women, Negotiations & Divorce

Most property and custody settlements are reached through negotiations rather than litigation. Negotiations can be difficult when a marriage has broken down and feelings have been hurt. You may fear that you will be overpowered in this process by both your husband and your attorney, and be coerced into accepting a settlement which does not meet your needs. The advice of an attorney both knowledgeable in family law and sensitive to your fears and wishes can help you assert your rights and negotiate a fair settlement.

PA student awarded by water board

Michael R. Deschenes, a senior at Phillips Academy, was one of 30 Massachusetts students who received awards from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and from state and local officials at Boston's John F. Kennedy Library recently.

Mr. Deschenes won third place and a $50 bond in the ninth-through-12th-grade group.

Susan Tierney, Massachusetts secretary of environmental affairs and MWRA Executive Director Paul F. Levy spoke at the ceremony, recognizing those who submitted winning entries to the poster and essay contest.

Students in second through 12th grades received U.S. Savings Bonds or special merit certificates, Ms. Tierney said.

The annual contest drew 3,056 poster and 626 essay entries. The contest was divided into grade categories, with first, second and third prizes in each, plus honorable mention awards recognizing other unusual or outstanding entries.

The contest was sponsored by the MWRA, which supplies water to 46 communities and sewer services to 43 communities in the Boston area. The poster contest was established by the Metropolitan District Commission in the early 1980s.

Alexis Contos, Anna Vining, Melissa Stone, Jennifer Johnson and Lindsey Pearson prove that too many cooks don't always spoil the soup, or in this case, cookies. The girls took part in the dessert fantasies class at Kaleidoscope, a three-week program designed to offer kids fun ways to learn.

Kaleidoscope ending; KITE set to start

The 11th Kaleidoscope summer program will end on Friday Aug. 2, and students are already looking ahead to what classes they want to take next year.

Some 450 children took classes in such diverse subjects as math, dinosaurs, computers and kung fu. The last of three one-week sessions lasts until Friday, Aug. 2.

But as Kaleidoscope is ending, another week-long program is set to start. KITE, the Kaleidoscope Institute for Thinking Excellence, still has several openings at Sanborn Elementary School. The program will last from Aug. 5 to 9, and is designed to meet the needs of talented students and hone their communication and thinking skills, according to Kaleidoscope director Janis Baron.

Each student must submit an interest questionnaire and interview for this controlled-enrollment course.

Areas of study include creative writing, natural science, mystery and computers. For more information, call 475-1422 or 470-3800, ext. 226.

DCS teen program to visit Hard Rock Cafe on Aug. 8

The Department of Community Services' teen program will make a trip to the Hard Rock Cafe on Thursday, Aug. 8.

The bus will leave from the Senior Center parking lot at 4 p.m. and return at 10 p.m.

The trip features dinner and a tour of the Hard Rock Cafe, followed by a trip to Faneuil Hall Marketplace.

Teens must preregister by Tuesday Aug. 6 at the DCS office in the town office building on Bartlet Street.

The cost of the trip is $7.

Cheerleading tryouts set for next week

The high school will hold cheerleading tryouts for fall sports next week.

Two evenings of practice clinics will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, August 6 and 7, at 6 p.m. in the AHS gym before the actual tryouts, Thursday, Aug. 8, at 6 p.m. in the gym.

Cheerleaders will be chosen for the football, basketball, soccer and ice hockey squads. For more information call the athletic office at 470-3800 ext. 369.

Let's go to the hop Andover Theatre troupe puts on Grease

Andover Theatre Company will present its third annual summer musical, Grease, by Warren Casey and Jim Jacobs.

The performances will be outdoors at Dragon's Lair Playground at Bancroft Elementary School on Bancroft Road. Performance dates are Fridays and Saturdays, Aug. 2, 3, 9 and 10 at 8 p.m. Saturday matinees will start at 2 p.m.

The 30-member cast and crew of Grease come from cities and towns throughout the Merrimack Valley.

The musical play follows the troubled love life of Sandy Dumbrowski (played by Vanessa Hill of North Andover), who transfers to Rydell High, where she meets the "Pink Ladies." She tells them of her "Summer Nights" romance.

The tough leader of the gang, Betty Rizzo (Arinne Trees of Chelmsford), thinks this guy sounds too good to be true. She is joined by Frenchy (Juree James of Andover), Jan (Julia Gaynor of North Andover) and Marty (Collenne Kiley of Andover).

They learn the object of Sandy's affection is the tough leader of the "Burger Palace Boys," Danny Zuko (Tom Ste. Marie of Chelmsford). The gang consists of second-in-command Kenickie (Mark Quint Peterson of Proving that opposites attract, Sandy Dumbrowski, the new kid in school, and Danny Zuko, a high school tough, discuss getting together. Other characters include the high-spirited cheerleader, Patty Simcox (Rachel Mary Bemis of North Andover); Eugene Florczyk (Sam Marchese of North Andover);

Harrison Ford plays the penitent child

By Alison Wolfe

In the beginning of Regarding Henry everything regarding Henry Turner — played surprisingly well by Harrison Ford — is negative. He's an attorney who will lie, cheat and steal to win a case. He is arrogant and condescending.

At home, his family life is almost nonexistent. His relationship with his wife (Annette Bening) is limited to an exchange of catty remarks about friends. He demands that his 11-year-old daughter (Mikki Allan) act like an adult. He smokes incessantly and drinks a lot too.

All that changes late one evening when Henry goes to the store for a pack of cigarettes. Inadvertently interrupting a holdup, he is shot in the head and chest and left to die.

On Film

He survives, but his memory, ability to speak and motor skills do not. Now he even needs help distinguishing a triangle from other shapes. ("I'll give you a hint," the nurse says gently. "It's green.")

With the help of his physical therapist, played well, if a bit flamboyantly, by Bill Nunn, Henry slowly recovers.

When he returns home, he gets to know his daughter. His wife's tenacious devotion and his new awareness fills the shell of their marriage with love and tenderness.

When Henry returns to work, all he is able to do is reread his old cases. He soon realizes that as an attorney he had no scruples and caused the suffering of many innocent people. He is disgusted by the man he was. The rest of the film shows him facing that and attempting to rectify past wrongs.

Harrison Ford is excellent. There is no sense of "Indiana Jones goes to New York and gets shot in the head." He is Henry — in both his incarnations.

Ms. Bening is great as the supportive wife who tries to make it all work. And newcomer Allan completely fills the role of the daughter who is wise beyond her years.

Henry's weakness is not in the area of performance but in Jeffrey Abrams' script. There is no subtlety. At certain points in the film he might as well have placed flashing subtitles reading: "This is funny. Laugh." or "Feel real warm and tender."

No one in production backed away from using cute gimmicks — which is unfortunate since you feel an obligation to emote rather than the emotion itself.

And it's too easy. Henry goes from evil to good without a lot of struggle. He is like a penitent child saying: "I was bad."

This is a film that is supposed to remind us of "what's really important" and perhaps it does, but it's too blatant and has a tendency to preach rather than show.

Alison Wolfe is one of the Townsmen's summer movie reviewers.

Arts council budget cut by 72 percent

The Massachusetts Cultural Council was awarded $3.6 million of funding for fiscal 1992, but still reported almost three-quarters of cuts in appropriations.

"Last week we were thrilled that we were alive. But this week we are faced with the reality of a 72 percent cut. It is very difficult, and the council must evaluate programming and staff issues," said Josiah A. Spaulding Jr., chairman of the council's board.

The arts council has already laid off 13 staff, including its executive director.

Mr. Spaulding said the organization needs to evaluate programming and staff issues in light of severely reduced appropriations for fiscal '92.

"We need to rebuild the arts in Massachusetts, and this is the opportunity to establish our priorities and goals," he said. "We need to explore and create public and private partnerships for the future."

The council will announce its budget plans at a board meeting today.

The Mass. Cultural Council supports public programs, the arts, humanities and sciences through grants and other services. It also funds 335 local arts councils, including Andover's.

The money comes from the Massachusetts Megabucks lottery program.

The council has supported Andover organizations such as the Northeast Document Conservation Center, Andover Endowment for the Arts and Merrimack Valley Philharmonic Society.

"We're looking at a reduction in our funds, but we do hope to be able to support these cultural organizations to help them through these tough economic times," said Rose Austin, the organization's director of programs.

Ms. Austin said the council hopes to involve towns' arts councils, artists and historians as it plans new funding strategies.

'We hope to be able to support (local) cultural organizations to help them through these tough economic times.'

Musical gets off to sock-hopping start

Andover Theatre Company's production of the musical Grease includes a carnival featuring activities such as a 1950s sock hop.

The pre-show events will begin an hour before each performance, including the matinees. The carnival and musical will be held indoors in the event of rain.

Show times are Friday and Saturday evenings, Aug. 2, 3, 9 and 10, at 8. The company will also perform matinees both Saturdays at 2 p.m. The show will be performed at Bancroft Elementary School's Dragon's Lair Playground.

This is the Theatre Company's third "Summer in the Park" musical.

Directed by Dennis Lorne, Grease tells the story of the unlikely romance between two high school kids in the '50s.

Penny drive to benefit cancer research

Get your two cents in during the American Cancer Society's Penny Days.

The competition continues when the penny drive moves to the site of the new Bertucci's Restaurant (formerly Thompson's Restaurant) at the intersection of Routes 114 and 125 in North Andover Saturday, Aug. 3, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Greater Lawrence Unit is competing with the Greater Lowell Unit to see which can collect the most pennies.

Old-fashioned penny candy, hot dogs, popcorn, music and fun will be the themes of the day. All of the events and activities call for payment in pennies. Prizes will be given to those whose pennies have been stored in the most unusual containers and those who turn in the greatest number.

Collection jugs in many locations throughout Andover North Andover, Lawrence, North Reading and Methuen will be rounded up, emptied and counted in an old-time coin sorter/counter. Pennies collected in area businesses and during Andover Bazaar Days will also be turned in and counted. A remote radio broadcast will set the mood of the event with such songs as "Pennies from Heaven" and "Three Coins in a Fountain."

The idea for the drive stemmed from a donation of pennies received by the local unit from the spouse of a cancer victim, according to Phil Pelletier, president of the Greater Lawrence unit.

"A committee was formed to look into penny-raising as a relatively painless way of letting everyone participate. We all have at least a few pennies; some have tens of thousands of the 'coppers' or 'gruppies' squirreled away in coffee cans, paint cans, cigar boxes, etc.," Mr. Pelletier said.

Those unable to attend may donate pennies (silver coins and paper money will also be accepted) or gain further information by contacting Ann Grecoe or Joan Rosenblatt in Andover or Mr. Pelletier in North Andover.

According to Michael White of the U.S. Bureau of the Mint, it costs the U.S. government six-tenths of a cent to produce each penny; 12.6 billion pennies were minted in 1989.

There are 181 of the new zinc pennies to each pound and 145 copper pennies per pound.

BrookRidge addresses changing times

BrookRidge Community Church will examine the changing American scene in a series the church is launching Sunday.

The series, "Changing Times," will start
Sunday, Aug. 4, with the interdenominational parish's 11 a.m. service.

Pastor William Watson will lead the first service in the series, which will focus on

"The Changing American Male."

"Males in their 30s and 40s - a transitional generation - are suffering the most with the changes," Rev. Watson said. "Many of them married with one set of rules, and now they feel the rules have changed. It seemed that aloofness was once desirable; now openness and sensitivity are prized."

Probably there are not many of our readers who have not read or heard of the escape of Julius MacArthur from the Dover, N.H., jail last Friday evening, where he was awaiting trial for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Smith, but it will be news to many to know that he was in Andover last Monday and gave our police a lively chase. About 6 o'clock Chief of Police Cheever was notified by Geo. W. Stover who lives in the Hold District, that a man answering the description of MacArthur had called at his place asking to have a dollar change, the way to No. Reading, and other questions. Mr. Stover having read the account of his escape and his description in the daily papers, thought it was MacArthur and came directly after Cheever. The latter with officer E. L. Frye started in pursuit. They took the North Reading road and came in sight of the man on the doorstep where, it was afterwards found out, he was waiting for some supper which was to consist mainly of boiled eggs.

The enthusiastic public response to a summer school program for elementary children has pushed And-

The first-year success with remedial and enrichment classes for younger students took director Arthur Danforth so by surprised that he had to do some fancy rescheduling to avoid hiring extra teachers.

An exhibit entitled "100 years of Andover in Maps and Views" is being arranged by Mrs. Barbara Sessions, curator for the Andover Historical Society for showing through the month of August.

Manager Richard Bowen told the Board of Selectmen Monday that the town should not be persuaded by the present satisfactory water situation to procrastinate in its planning for expansion of water facilities.

He urged that they schedule a special town meeting for the fall, asking voters to approve funds for work to enlarge the storage capacity of Haggett's Pond by one foot or 100 million gallons.

Bowen said that in the past the town has waited to schedule water projects until it has had to react to an emergency and that he is opposed to continuing this practice.

The Andover Board of Selectmen has notified the State Department of Natural Resources that it is unanimously opposed to an Andover contractor's plans for dredging and filling in the area of Fosters Pond unless state engineers can demonstrate that the work contemplated will not affect the water table of that immediate area or the numerous private residential wells on land near the pond.

A HEADY PLAY

Anyone who has ever been admonished to "get his or her head on straight" may retort that this task is harder to accomplish than it may seem. First of all, the head is not perfectly centered atop the neck, as one might assume. The nine to sixteen pound sphere that we call the head actually would topple forward were it not for the muscles at the back of the neck which hold it upright. Regarding the cervical spine, it has been calculated that the neck moves over 500 times during the course of the average day, as it plays a central role in most upper-body activities. Is it any wonder, then, that the head and neck are vulnerable to aches and pains? These uppermost body parts require and deserve proper treatment in order that they may enjoy continued health.

If you are sitting in one position for many hours you may notice strain, stress and pain in your upper body. We have been able to help many of our patients with neck, shoulder, and back pain and also headaches at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042. We accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central St.

P.S. To get an idea of how much force the head exerts on the neck, hold a bowling ball straight up in the air with an elbow resting on a table.

South Africans: 'I'm writing about my life'

ing country.

Bernadette Mosala, from Johannesburg and Soweto, said what the teachers learned in Andover was invaluable.

"There's no book to contain that. There's none," she said. "For the first time, I'm writing about my life, my experiences. The program is going to enable all of the teachers to discover their voice."

"It has a special meaning because the South African society is quiet, and a closed one."

She hopes that what the teachers learned here will lead to more South Africa children being heard.

"It is important for South Africa to get to this voice, to discover this voice, especially for children," she said. "It's therapeutic and informative."

Ms. Mosala said the people of Johannesburg and Soweto are alive and vibrant.

"It is this diversity of these people that needs to be captured, constructively and positively engaged," she said.

The 12 South Africans, from places such as Johannesburg, Cape Town, Bophutswana, Qwaqwa and Pretoria, along with 11 American teachers from inner-city schools, mostly in New Jersey and Ohio, took part in the Andover Bread Loaf Program at PA.

The Bread Loaf School of English is a writing program based at Middlebury College, in Vermont. The program uses a variety of workshops to teach writing, but more importantly in this case, to help teachers learn new approaches to teach and inspire writing in students. Students from Lawrence also took part in many of the workshops with the teachers.

"We've had a very special four weeks. For me, it's been a dream come true," said Vuyelwa Maqubela, director of the South African program.

Ms. Maqubela came to Andover five years ago from South Africa to marry her husband, Temba, who has been in exile in this country since 1976.

"I'm not in exile. I'm just married to exile," she said with a laugh.

Mr. Maqubela fled from South Africa because he was wanted by the government for suspected political activities. He now teaches chemistry at Phillips Academy.

Readings humorous, serious

The South African and American teachers concluded their studies last Thursday morning by reading one or two of their own works. Some were humorous, some deep, others appreciative for the workshop.

Rita Duda, of Cleveland, Ohio, read two pieces, one about the hard realities of life for some people in the United States. The other, Whose fault is it?, was a humorous piece that "blamed" different members of the class for things she learned during the program, things she knew had changed her life forever.

Another teacher, Elizabeth Anne White, of Worcester, read I Must Write, a story of her own efforts to complete her writing assignments during the heat wave of the last few weeks.

Pat Dressler, from Cleveland, Ohio, read a piece she wrote about New England and addressed it to the South Africans.

"I would tell you about New England, that you may learn about me. Tell me about South Africa, that I may learn about you," Ms. Dressler wrote.

Noleen Kgosikoma, one of the South African teachers, complied. She read a piece in Satswana, a South African dialect, which stressed the value of exposing inner-city children to the level of writing encouraged by Bread Loaf. She read with great emotion and evoked a trill from the South Africans, a combination whistle and whoop of applause that means "right on."

Deborah Pelle, from Johannesburg, expressed her appreciation for the workshops, then read a piece about the drudgery of a typical day in the life of a working South African woman.

Joan Mofokeng, of Johannesburg, read what she said was a true story, I Remember, a tale about her and her husband being beaten by white South African police during an unprovoked raid on their home. She was distressed that "not even a bird in the sky" was there to take a picture and bear witness to the brutality of the police.

This reading must have been poignant to many in the group, but particularly to Nthabiseng Mabuza, a teen-age South African girl now living in Cambridge with her family and attending Cambridge Rindge and Latin School.

Ms. Mabuza was living in Botswana in 1986 when she was shot during a police action similar to the one described in the reading. Knocked down by three police bullets in the back and left for dead, she had gotten up and begun to hobble away when she was shot four more times. She is now paralyzed from the waist down and uses a wheelchair.

Ms. Mabuza came to the workshop last year as a student and discovered her hidden talent - writing. She was back this year to share some of her work with the new students.

Ms. Maqubela said the goals for bringing the South African teachers here was to get them out of South Africa and into a place where they could think freely, "to feel free, to be in a place they are not oppressed," and to expose them to different teaching styles.

After the readings last Thursday, the South Africans, the American teachers and the students from Lawrence gathered at the house of Lou Bernieri, head of the Andover Bread Loaf Program, for a cookout.

Some of the Africans talked more intimately of what the program meant to them. None of the South Africans knew each other until they met in Johannesburg one month earlier to come to Andover.

Sharif Pandur, of Cape Town, said he learned to articulate his method of teaching, to break down the patterns of teaching into describable parts, so he can now teach others.

Mr. Pandur helps organize similar workshops on methodology at the University of Cape Town.

"I want to go back home. There is a lot of work to be done there," Mr. Pandur said.

The war against apartheid is fought on many fields: armed struggle, government talks. Education is another form of battle, according to Mr. Pandur.

"I see myself as a soldier. Bantu education is the enemy," he said.

Three levels of education exist in South Africa, one for whites, one for coloreds, and Bantu, a form of education used to train blacks and designed to keep them from advancing in society.

"Education was used to oppress us. But I feel it is through education that we can liberate ourselves," Mr. Pandur said.

Going home

Ms. Maqubela hopes to increase the South Africans' participation in the writing program.

Last year only one South African came to the program with funds raised by that teacher's school. This year more South Africans were able to take part because they received funds from other sources, including the United States-South African Leader Exchange Program, a Washington, D.C., based group that raises funds from the corporate and foundation community.

Some of the American teachers will gather for a reunion when they return to PA in January to report on how they have progressed with what they've learned. Another reunion may take place in South Africa later.

The Maqubelas plan to go to South Africa this December, not to stay, but for a visit. It will be his first visit back to his homeland in almost 16 years. The freeing last year of Nelson Mandela, leader of the African National Congress, and other moves by the South African government toward dismantling apartheid make the couple believe it is now safe for Mr. Maqubela to return.

"We are hoping he will be safe," Ms. Maqubela said. "It is time now for him to go back."

"Finally, I am going home," Mr. Maqubela said.

Linda Murdock is dying of AIDS

She brings this strength and positive outlook to the AIDS support group in Andover at Christ Church on Central Street. She started attending the group after getting involved with the Visiting Nurse Association HomeCare Inc., a non-profit subsidiary of the Home Health Foundation.

Although she began attending the group for herself, she now believes she's emotionally strong enough to help others also. She's accepted her life, and she's determined to help others through their illness.

She hasn't attended the support group recently, but says she'll go back soon.

"There's a woman I know in the group who really needs me," she says.

Ms. Murdock admits she didn't lead a good life before her diagnosis five years ago. She left home and used drugs at the age of 11. It had nothing to do with peer pressure. Ms. Murdock says she just wanted to get high.

"I was drinking, smoking pot, taking acid, Percodan and barbiturates," she says.

She became involved with an older man who was able to get alcohol and drugs, and she continued to take them until she couldn't stop. Later, she progressed to cocaine and heroin and became an intravenous drug user.

Relations with her father were strained and she considered herself to be the rebellious "black sheep of the family."

"My father was the tough militant type," she says.

After analyzing her relationship with her father, who has since died, she says she now believes she was ultimately looking for love.

She doesn't, however, blame him. In fact, she doesn't blame anyone but herself.

"I did the drugs," she says.

In order to get them, Ms. Murdock turned to prostitution. She says the transition of using drugs to sleeping with men to get them wasn't very difficult because she was "hooked."

"I didn't care about anything but getting the drugs," she says.

She voluntarily admitted herself into rehabilitation centers approximately six different times, but that didn't work. Once again, she blames herself.

"The only way it helps is if the person has the desire to stop," she says.

Many times, her boyfriend would bring the drugs to her room at the rehabilitation center during private visits.

Years ago, she was admitted to a center after trying to commit suicide. She says she was so far down the pit, she wanted to end her life.

Later, she was back on drugs again.

Leading a life with so many risks brought its share of consequences. Five years ago, she was arrested on drug charges and given the choice to go to jail or Youth Challenge, a Christian program in Virginia for anyone inter-

Linda Murdock talks from her room in Lawrence.

AIDS support groups offers the chance to share

The AIDS support group in Andover meets every Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Christ Church on Central Street.

The group was formed by Leslie Bresnahan, a nurse with the Visiting Nurse Association HomeCare Inc.

Family members of those who have AIDS are also invited. During the first hour, everyone remains together to discuss any issues that arise. Later, the family and the AIDS patients are separated into different rooms, so they can discuss specific concerns and questions.

Linda Murdock, who has AIDS, said the group holds open discussions.

"If anything is bothering someone, we talk about it among ourselves," she said.

Discussions also include personal problems and fears.

The number of members varies, with men outnumbering women, but Ms. Murdock said there are regulars.

Everyone is welcome, from any community or background.

Ms. Murdock said the group is a source of strength for AIDS patients.

"The group has saved me more than once," she said.

During each meeting, Ms. Bresnahan, or another member, opens the meeting and explains the purpose of it, which is to discuss all concerns openly. Ms. Bresnahan and other professional staff are on hand to answer medical questions about medication or treatment. A social worker is also present to advise participants.

At the closing of each meeting, participants join hands and pray.

ested in becoming a Christian. She chose Youth Challenge.

There, she found God.

Nine months prior to learning she was HIV positive, she straightened out her life and got off drugs.

Despite her new lifestyle, Ms. Murdock was faced with a challenge she didn't expect.

She went to a hospital in Virginia because she had a bad cold and her doctor asked if she wanted to be tested for the AIDS virus.

She agreed.

She now realizes she knew, "deep down," that she had the virus.

Ms. Murdock believes that in many cases, people who are afflicted know, years to live. That was five years ago.

"I don't think they should have told me I had four years," she says. "They had no right to put a time on a disease that's so unpredictable."

After the prognosis, Ms. Murdock says she became angry.

"I had gone to that Christian program, and I had been a Christian for nine months," she says. "I got pissed at God. I had straightened out my life and came off of heroin and coke. I had done everything God could possibly want me to do, and then all of a sudden... kabang."

After learning about her life expectancy, Ms. Murdock says she couldn't handle facing her disease, so she started using drugs again. During this time, she was beaten up because of drugs and was close to death. She underwent surgery twice to get her face put back together.

At that point, she says she realized God didn't give her the disease to hurt her.

"He gave me AIDS to give me life," she says. "It's made me realize the quality of life. He took a death sentence and gave me life out of it."

The temptation to use drugs is an urge Ms. Murdock says never goes away. She fights off temptation by praying.

"I keep myself busy so I don't think about it," she says. "I also weigh the pros and cons of it. I think about what's going to happen if I do go out there. One shot will be the death of me."

To keep busy, she takes walks, reads the Bible, talks to friends from New England Bible Church, and friends from the VNA.

Because she's outlived the four years doctors predicted, she is more determined than ever to do something with her life before she dies.

She speaks at schools and at New England Bible Church, and is never at a loss for words when asked about the fears the public has.

"The public is uninformed about AIDS," she says.

Ms. Murdock wants to teach people about AIDS before she dies. She also wants to help others afflicted with the disease.

She doesn't get angry when she meets people who are afraid of AIDS.

"AIDS is death," she says. "There are a lot of people out there who are really afraid of death, and when you're looking at it straight in the face, they don't want to see it."

With fear, Ms. Murdock believes comes rejection.

"I've experienced rejection," she says. "But I've realized if a person doesn't accept you then it's their problem, not yours."

Throughout her illness, Ms. Murdock says she's found out who her real friends are. After 16 years, she was once again reunited with her family in September. They worry about her, but support her. They live in Maryland, but she says they know she can take but are afraid to find out for sure.

She wanted to know.

A couple of days later, she went back to the office and asked for the results.

"My legs were shaking," she says. "I asked someone to just give me the results, but they said I had to wait. I knew then that I had it."

She says when she heard someone call for a counselor, she was sure the results were positive.

"I cried," she says. "I think they were expecting me to flip out, but I didn't. I just sat there and cried and then asked them how long I had to live."

The doctor told her she had four

Sue Tucker's law...

letters each week from women who have already been helped by the domestic violence legislation she authored and helped push through the Legislature earlier this year.

Former Gov. Dukakis signed the Act to Further Protect Abused Persons into law Jan. 31. Gov. Weld's Domestic Violence Implementation Committee has been working since that time with the various branches of law enforcement and government agencies to coordinate implementation of the law.

"Traditionally the whole issue of domestic violence has been swept under the carpet," said Ms. Tucker.

"The laws essentially haven't been changed since 1978. They've needed changing for quite some time, because quite simply they weren't working," she said.

The statistics

Ms. Tucker credits former U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop for placing a national spotlight on domestic violence as a primary health issue in the mid-1980s.

According to government health figures:

- One woman is murdered every 22 days in Massachusetts by a partner or former partner.
- Four women were murdered by their partners last April in Massachusetts. Three of the women had restraining orders issued against their partners at the time they were killed.
- Two of the four murdered were shot in front of their children.
- One third of all the women treated in emergency rooms nationwide are victims of domestic violence.
- Only 5 percent of convicted batterers ever receive treatment or counseling.

Changing the laws

The rewritten law has changes ranging from the definition of a batterer and the roles of police and the courts, to required the treatment for convicted batterers.

Under the new law, former in-laws and those in dating relationships are considered family members and are subject to arrest. Previously, many women in dating relationships had difficulty getting restraining orders against boyfriends or former boyfriends, said Ms. Tucker.

"That is a very important provision. Some of the worst violence was coming when relationships broke up," she said.

One of the phone calls Ms. Tucker recently received came from a young woman who wanted to thank her. She had called the police and was able to get a restraining order against her former boyfriend without any hesitation. The woman told Ms. Tucker she had friends who weren't so fortunate in the past.

Arrests

The law requires police to arrest anyone who violates a restraining order, even if a victim is unwilling to press charges. Ms. Tucker said in some cases games were being played by people who took out restraining orders against a batterer and then refused to press charges when it was violated.

"That isn't fair for women who really need them. This legislation says clearly - a 209A restraining order is a court order and if you violate it you will be arrested. For too long it was up to the discretion of the women, the police and the court judges," she said.

Susan Tucker

In the past, many police departments believed domestic calls were out of their jurisdiction, said Ms. Tucker.

"They would take the husband out and walk him around the block until he cooled down," she said.

Treatment for batterers

Ms. Tucker said society's tolerance of domestic violence is changing just as it did with drunk driving in the '80s. She was chosen legislator of the year in 1990 by the Victims' Rights Group in Massachusetts for her work on changing the laws.

"Society is changing but many people still believe in the age-old stereotypes and women continue to suffer. They believe she could leave if she really wanted to, or since she doesn't leave and takes it she must like it or even provoke it. Many people even believe if she tried harder in her marriage she wouldn't be in that situation," Ms. Tucker said.

Under the new law, convicted batterers must enter a treatment program at their own cost as a condition of probation.

In the past, many victims and their abusers were encouraged to seek marriage counseling, said Ms. Tucker. One of the primary problems was that the batterer never confronts his or her behavior.

The implementation committee is still working on the guidelines for the treatment program.

The committee is also working on establishing a statewide council to work with police, courts, shelter and support groups to coordinate treatment and protection for victims.

Law enforcement

Since 1984, law enforcement candidates have been required to complete eight hours of courses in handling domestic violence. Police are now required to file reports immediately on all domestic violence cases they investigate and place them on file in order to create a paper trail that can be used in prosecuting a batterer.

Police duties are now expanded to include assisting the victim to a safe place if necessary and informing the victim that the arrested batterer is eligible for bail and may promptly be released.

Court officials must now make reasonable efforts to inform a victim of domestic violence prior to the release of an abuser on bail.

The law protects police officers from law suits if the officer acted reasonably and in good faith making an abuse arrest. It also encourages police officers to confiscate firearms at the scene of domestic violence.

Ms. Tucker currently is working part time with Harvard College's School of Public Health on the implementation of the new Abuse Prevention Act.

She is also making public appearances talking on subjects ranging from women in politics, children's and victims' rights, to getting political attention for a cause.

care of herself.

Despite considering herself a loner, Ms. Murdock has no shortage of friends. Pictures of children adorn her walls.

"They're my nieces and nephews," she says.

Actually, they aren't related to her. They are children she knows from teaching Sunday school at church who call her "Auntie" and whom she loves like her own.

One child, Scott, has made quite an impact in her life. Every Monday, she visits him at St. Anne's, a home for troubled and abused children in Methuen. She says he has had a troubled life, but would love to have him as her own.

She can't because she has AIDS.

Not being able to adopt Scott isn't the only problem she has faced since learning she had AIDS. She has other medical problems, too.

While on a hospital visit for an infection due to cervical cancer, a doctor refused her treatment on four different occasions.

Finally, she asked the doctor if it had anything to do with the fact that she was HIV positive. The doctor didn't answer.

"I took that as a yes," she says.

Ms. Murdock didn't yell; she didn't even get upset. Instead, she went to another doctor in Boston. She says she probably could have sued the first doctor, but then added, "Why should I burden someone else because of my disease."

Since then, she underwent surgery for a hysterectomy.

Despite all of this, Ms. Murdock isn't afraid of death. She takes one day at a time and says if the Lord decides to take her, she's ready. "If he takes me, then I'll be in heaven and I'll be more than happy to be there."

Although fear doesn't seem to be part of her life, Ms. Murdock still has things she wants to do before she dies.

She wants to see an AIDS ministry established that is available to people who have AIDS, and is calling the speakers bureau in Boston, where she will receive training and then speak at different engagements.

"I want to help the public get over the fear when it comes to this disease," she says.

Talking to Ms. Murdock about her disease, one would think she was made of armor.

Even through the most turbulent times, she managed to obtain her general educational diploma when she was 25 years old.

Her faith in God never dwindled and she has an endless supply of optimism.

She says what she's most tired of is always being "sick and tired."

She patiently waits for the good days.

She says her last good day was four days ago. She doesn't expect another one for another four months.

"They don't come very often, but they do come," she says.

Ms. Murdock experiences the sweats at night, nausea, and a strong feeling of exhaustion.

She was on AZT, but says it made her sick.

AZT is a drug used to inhibit the reproduction of some of the viruses related to AIDS, including the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

"I don't feel good now, but when I was taking that, I really felt like I had AIDS," she says.

She told her doctor that she didn't want to continue the medication, but her doctor said she would die if she didn't.

She went back on it for a short while, but finally decided she'd had enough. "I felt like a truck ran over me, then backed up and ran over me again," she says.

If she had a chance to live her life over again, Ms. Murdock wouldn't change anything. "I'm happy with my life now," she says. "I believe God has a plan for everybody's life and this is his plan for me. Maybe this is what I had to look forward to in order to get to the point where I am today."

Ms. Murdock says except for her pastor, she doesn't want many people present when she dies.

"I want people to remember me when it was good."

EDITORIALS

Thank you, Linda Murdock, for sharing

Linda Murdock, the 36-year-old woman who is dying of AIDS and who told her story beginning on page 1 in today's Townsmen, is a lucky person. Given a death sentence, she finally began to live.

We, the readers, are lucky, too, because Ms. Murdock has shared her story with us. We have much to learn from this brave woman: strong faith, a system of priorities, an understanding of what it means to reach out to others, acceptance and forgiveness.

Ms. Murdock led a life in the past that horrifies us, jolts our fear of living a life that's out of control. But if we stick with her and understand her growth, we are encouraged and impressed. If she can do it, so can we.

Therefore, we are grateful that Ms. Murdock is free to share her story. We have much to learn from her. And we thank her.

Also to be congratulated is AIDS of Andover, the group that supports those who are affected by the disease. The group was put together by some local people who have personal reasons to reach out to those with AIDS. They will be the first to tell you how much they have learned from the Linda Murdocks of this world.

She and those who started the support group are gifts.

An opportunity to grow with caring

The Council on Aging needs volunteers to drive patients to medical appointments. The council needs drivers who could stay with the patient until the appointment is completed.

The Council offers reimbursement for mileage. If you can help, call the Senior Center at 470-3830.

The opportunity to volunteer to fill in the gaps of a person's life, a person who otherwise could not cope, is just that — an opportunity. There are people who act as volunteers whose hours of giving have changed their lives. If you have a car and a few hours to spare, give it a try.

Two senior citizens were honored at the Senior Center last week. They are, Frances Luca of North Reading, center, holding a plaque, and Domingo G. Galdos of Upland Road. At far left is Mary Byrne, director of the Council on Aging, and at far right is Olivia Scileppi, volunteer coordinator for the Council on Aging. Mrs. Luca, formerly of Andover, volunteers in several places, including at Andover's Senior Center where she organizes a club of people who make and sell crafts for the center's benefit. Mr. Galdos volunteers as a teacher of Spanish I and Spanish II at the center and the classes are so popular that the center hasn't been to accommodate everyone who wants to take them.

Women are afraid; some men understand

By Perry Colmore Catlin

Two different men have told me now that when they are walking at night and they see a woman up ahead, they will cross the street to stay out of her way so she won't be frightened. One of them said he tries to give a little cough so she will know he's there, so she won't be startled and perhaps more frightened.

It's good to hear that because women have believed that men don't understand what it's like to be afraid, to be so vulnerable. When I said that to one man, he said, "I have a girl friend and a sister." So he does understand.

Women are afraid. We're afraid we might be raped or assaulted. I would like to walk my dog near Poms Pond at night but I once did that and met a man walking there and I was afraid. He was fine, but I wasn't sure of that at the moment.

When I lived in New York City I took subways all over the place and I freely walked in Central Park. I wouldn't do that today. There are many places a woman won't go because she feels unsafe.

Apparently women are often afraid to report incidences of abuse — afraid we won't be taken seriously, or even believed.

It's good the press is writing about rape. Of course the case of William Kennedy Smith means the issue of rape will be before the public for some time now.

The more people acknowledge that the possibility of rape exists, that it happens, the more women will have the courage to report assaults. At the Townsmen, we would report the name of a rape victim if that person agreed. If the person said no, we wouldn't use the name. We would like to use the victim's name because we believe using the name helps deliver the message that this is not the person at fault, that this person is a victim.

We also know that if one person acknowledges rape, another person reading the account may be encouraged to have the courage to report a batterer.

I am impressed with the case of the 76-year-old Alton, N.H., woman who went public with details of her rape. That woman knows she is helping other victims, by telling her story.

In the same breath, I'd like to congratulate Susan Tucker of Andover, our former state representative, who sponsored a bill that produced a law that takes effect today. Under the law, police can arrest suspected batterers. Heretofore, police often have tried to arbitrate what we in the newspaper business call "domestics." They'd tell him to go cool off, he'd leave the house, and so would the police. Later, he'd return, beat, or maybe even kill her.

Now, police arrest the alleged batterer, if there's probable cause, even if the alleged victim isn't willing to file a complaint. Often, a woman is too frightened to file a complaint against her partner. He may hunt her down later and beat her more. Or kill her.

Or she may be frightened she can't support herself. She may have convinced herself she needs this man.

So, Sue Tucker's bill is a step in the right direction of protecting women.

LETTERS

This family will not use the bus

Editor, Townsmen:

I'm writing to explain why my wife and I decided not to use the school department's new optional busing service. We have two children at South School and we live within 1 1/2 miles, so the service would have cost us a little over $400 a year. We're fortunate enough not to have suffered layoffs in our household, so the cost of the service is not a problem for us as it is for many others.

When school busing was free, we had the attitude that it was a mandatory part of the school program. It always seemed like the school day started when the kids climbed up the bus stairs and started socializing with their bus-mates. Now that it's optional, we look at it from the consumer's point of view, and ask ourselves whether it's a good deal. Frankly, it's a pig in a poke: We can't tell how good a deal it is unless we pay for it first.

For one thing, the school department doesn't figure out the routes until after the riders have signed up and the only guarantee is that they'll stop within a mile of the house. It's just a bit over a mile to school. For another thing, the ride might take a long time. Things are just as uncertain from the school department's point of view: They're trying to guess who will pay for their new service.

We believe these bus-routing problems will be made worse because our neighbors have, like us, decided not to sign up for the service. Will the bus come down our street for just two kids or will the kids have to walk up and wait on busy Woburn Street? To find out, we have to sign up and pay for the service. Getting to school was easier when we didn't know we had a choice. In any case, we have decided to organize a car pool with some neighbors.

In the last days of last school year, the parents watching their kids at the bus stop started talking about mounting a mild protest by disruption. The theory is for every family to drive their kids to school at the same time and create a traffic jam the likes of which hasn't been seen north of the Central Artery in Boston. Upon seeing this traffic jam, the School Committee will, according to the theory, relent and restore free (that is, tax-supported) bus service.

I think this misses the point. The point is for parents, principals, teachers, and the School Committee to cooperate, and do our best to maintain the quality of education in the face of the reduced budget. It's more important to get our kids to school and get them educated than it is to win or lose in School Committee politics.

The budget cuts are bad. We can make them less so by cooperating with each other. For one thing, there are going to be lots of cars appearing at each school daily. The school administrations can cooperate by opening up the circular driveways to a disciplined flow of traffic.

Many private schools in this area have solved this traffic problem. I'm sure the people who run them would be glad to talk things over with their public-school counterparts.

Parents can cooperate by setting up and sticking with carpools. Students (remember them?) can cooperate by staying out of the school parking lots and driveways during dropoff and pickup times.

The school department can cooperate by figuring out tentative bus routes and issuing another appeal for paying riders. If the bus goes past our house, we would change our minds and pay for the service.

The School Committee can cooperate by making it clear they want the new school-transport system to work and by not changing the rules.

This, too, shall pass. Until it does, let's make the best of it.

Stop dumping on town land

Editor, Townsmen:

Dear Ms. (Ginny) Cohen:

Your letter to the editor, "Please don't dump here" published in the June 6 Townsmen, raised issues that have troubled the Andover Conservation Commission for a long time. Specifically, it reports a pattern of dumping on town-owned conservation land by the neighborhood, and forcefully states the case for the need to end the abuse of the town's open space.

Thank you for making an effort to bring this matter to the commission's attention. I would like to take this opportunity to respond to the concerns raised in your letter and to provide a brief explanation of what we mean by "conservation land" for you and the readers of the "letters to the editor" section of our local papers.

At present approximately 1,500 acres of conservation land is owned by the town of Andover and placed in perpetuity under the care and custody of the Conservation Commission. The land was acquired by the commission for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is our belief that the scattering of "green" spaces throughout the residential areas results in more pleasant living in the adjacent neighborhoods. In spite of our problems, we still believe that Andover is and will remain a desirable place to live principally because of the open, semi-rural atmosphere created by that conservation and other preserved land throughout the town.

The term "conservation land" is often used interchangeably with the term "wetland." This understanding is incorrect. While many conservation areas happen to be wetlands subject to protection under the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act, the majority of Andover's wetlands are privately owned and, on the other hand, many town-owned conservation areas are all or predominantly dry, up-lands.

The disposal of yard wastes has become a long-term problem for society and also affects us here in Andover. When the town population was smaller there was less of a problem, or more simply, fewer people and more open space, with a wide open town dump, resulted in far fewer incidents of concentrated dumping such as you described.

Now, with the continuing loss of open space to development and the increasing town population density, we are seeing increasing misuse of the remaining open land for dumping purposes. I wish I could find a pleasant solution to that problem, but so far I don't know of one.

Some perfectly nice people who would never consider dumping their trash in their neighbor's yard do not hesitate to dump in the commonly owned land right next to their neighbor's yard . . . and then there are that smaller, but more aggravating, number of the not-so-nice people who always seem to be with us and dumping . . . and the commercial collectors who find fewer and fewer places that will accept their clean up collections . . . etc.!

The imminent prohibition of such material from sanitary landfills and resource recovery plants (incinerators) will no doubt result in increased dumping onto conservation land in the short term. However, responsible solutions to the disposal problem have been at least partially implemented and may serve as a model.

As you may know the Conservation Commission has cooperated in starting a managed municipal leaf composting who backs up a five-ton truck loaded with building trash and dumps it on "our" land? One way is to write letters like this, and to get the local paper to publish them. Hopefully, all who read will cease any and all dumping on our town lands. Some might. I certainly hope so.

This is also a good time to remind those who use chemical lawn treatments that these often include the use of deadly poisons that, when spread out enough, are of a low enough concentration so that no one is hurt. But, when you pile these clippings you concentrate the poisons. If you must use chemical lawn care, please use a composting mower and leave the clippings spread out on the lawn.

However, the temptation to dump always seems to be too strong to resist for some people. The only solution that has had any hope of keeping the problem down to tolerable proportions (notice, I did not say solve the problem) is enforcement. Under the provisions of M.G.L.C. 40, Section 8C the commission maintains conservation land for "conservation purposes" and has adopted rules and regulations for use of conservation land. The current rules, adopted in 1978, prohibit the dumping of any material whatsoever. Violation of this provision is punishable by imposition of a fine.

Under the provisions of the newly adopted non-criminal disposition for violations of bylaws and formal rules and regulations, the town will shortly begin issuing a $25 ticket for first offenses, and a $50 ticket for second offenses. Dumpers beware!

And the first line of effective enforcement is the adjacent property-owners. While all citizens are asked to discourage any illegal dumping they see by peaceful means, we especially call upon our concerned citizens to volunteer to take a proprietary interest in specific nearby town lands as conservation overseers. An overseer has an official position with responsibilities and authority with further backup by our conservation administrator and, when required, the local police. Conservation overseers are appointed by the Board of Selectmen and town manager to oversee individual conservation properties. The commission's goal is to have a least one overseer for each conservation area.

Given your demonstrated interest the commission would be pleased to recommend your appointment to become a conservation overseer for the Tea Lot Estates Green Area. Readers interested in overseeing other Conservation Commission lands should write to: Town of Andover, Conservation Commission, Town Hall, 36 Bartlet St., Andover 01810.

Maintaining conservation land in its open, natural condition is our mutual responsibility. Again, thank you for your interest.

program at the the Bald Hill Conservation area at High Plain Road. In the opening six weeks of operation last year approximately 280 tons of leaves were collected and composted in accordance with guidelines established between the commonwealth and the town. The composted end product will be used for municipal projects and the community gardens. Similar disposal solutions to yard wastes such as grass clippings may be implemented in the future. In the meantime we need to prevent our nearby open space areas from becoming dumps.

Neighbors continue to protest Bruk appeal to ZBA

Editor, Townsmen:

Many of the members of the Osgood Neighbors Association are very concerned about the precedent that will be set if the Zoning Board of Appeals approves the current petition for industrial use of residential lots on Frontage Road.

Paul Bruk is petitioning a use variance and special permit for these lots which belong to the Sheehys with whom he claims to have a purchase option. Mr. Bruk filed his petition within 30 days of the town meeting this April which voted down Mr. Bruk's re-zoning article for these same lots.

At the July 11 zoning board hearing, Mr. Bruk's only claim of hardship (one of the many necessary conditions for the board to grant a variance) was that without the variance he, as a potential future owner, would not make "highest and best use of the land."

If the zoning board, influenced by the new 1990 Planning Board provisions, decides favorably on the Bruk petition, then a precedent will be established that should worry all Andover residents.

The precedent will encourage any single residence lot owner or neighbor, who believes that the lot is worth more under a different zoning or use, to sell the land on the condition that the buyer petitions the zoning board for a use variance or special permit. The buyer can then go before the zoning board, show that the current zoning or use does not provide for the "highest and best use" and the board will have a precedent to find in favor of the petition.

One effect could be the filing of many petitions throughout the town. It could also mean that any zoning voted by town meeting and enacted in the zoning bylaws can not be enforced by either the Zoning Board of Appeals or the Planning Board. Establishment of this precedent would "derogate and nullify" the intent of the town meetings that have enacted and sustained Andover's zoning bylaws. These bylaws, section VIII.B.2.c.(2), forbid actions that have this effect.

Because of the impact this precedent will have, we ask that many Andover residents make their concerns known by opposing the petition at the final hearing of the Bruk petition on Aug. 5 at 7 p.m. at the Memorial Library second floor.

Marine Doyle returns from war

Marine Capt. William G. Doyle, son of William and Claire Doyle Jr. of 11 Westwind Road, recently returned from Operation Desert Storm and Operation Sea Angel while serving at Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Operation Desert Storm was the largest deployment of U.S. military forces since Vietnam. The operation was in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and threat to Saudi Arabia.

Operation Sea Angel employed more than 7,000 Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force personnel to assist in a massive relief effort to Bangladesh's southern coast and nearby islands to provide food and supplies to approximately 1.7 million people recovering from a cyclone that claimed 138,000 lives.

The 1980 graduate of Andover High School and 1984 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., joined the Marine Corps in May 1984.

This is the machine that ate the weeds in Pumps Pond that used to turn off all the swimmers. Members of the Andover Garden Club came up with a third of the money for this hydrorake to clean out the weeds at the popular town swimming hole. And if you've had a swim there lately, you know the weeds aren't bad at all.

Here's what's happening at playgrounds

Sanborn

The Sanborn Candy Shop took first place in the annual July 4 Horribles parade, sharing the title with South School. Michelle Danis, Kristin Sweeney, Leah Spires, Molly and Lee Klarmen, Shannon Sweeney and Suzie and Kristin Moffet dressed up like candy. Even the Moffet's dog, Daisy, got into the act. This week the Sanborn floor hockey All-Stars biked trip to West playground to challenge the hockey team there. Jeff Danis, Mike Couture, Billy Kearns, Danny Lombard, Scott Ciruso, Robby Oppenheim, Jamie Butler, Matt Mahoney, and Brian LaFranchi played a great game. Susan Bryden, Mike Zizzo, Elizabeth Little, Beth and Suzie Anderson, Monica Turbett, Lindsay Straub, Marissa Feola and Chris Brown were excellent skaters on the roller skating field trip. Kevin and Erin Zwauna, Jamie Fox, Eliza Roberts, and Corey Green made some really cool pinatas. The cook-out on Friday was a great way to end the week.

Bancroft

With the return of good weather, week three went off without a hitch.

On Monday pinatas were made. Meg Munroe, Travis Gagnon and Tyler Pinstein ended up wearing more paper mache than the balloons. Lucky for them though, Tony Morando hosed them (and everyone else) off.

Tobi Cutler, Becky and Michael Hass, Brian Decourcy and Heather Gendron had salt coming out of their ears on Tuesday when they made salt jars with colored chalk. The older campers biked to Brighams. Scooter Decourcy, Alan and Steve Hibino and Danny Piercy led the way.

Congratulations to Ed Owens for winning the chicken dance contest at Roll-R-Way on Wednesday. Darrin Iles and Vanessa Marsh skated circles around everyone else.

Halloween fell on a Thursday this year and many ghosts and goblins visited the playground. For a costume contest, Janna Nims won the Most Likely to end up in a Pumpkin Pie Award, Pat Hogarty and Tobi Cutler won most athletic and Best Ninjas went to Greg Kearns and Heather Miller. Everyone was a winner in this contest.

West

Last Tuesday a recycling center was set up. Sara Thomas and Crystal Pryor brought in milk cartons and styrofoam containers. Pam Schardin wore a terrific hula girl outfit for Hawaiian day last Wednesday. Danielle Denhartog, Stephanie Ataide, Jennifer Leary, and Michelle and Tammy Zayas made beautiful banana people. West dressed up as "Past and Future" for the Horribles Parade. Hilary Cohen and Chrissy Bevaqua dressed as '50s girls and Pam Schardin as a '60s flower child. On Friday Rachel Hartman, Kristen Deluca, Jeff Adams, and Lisa Tisbert enjoyed the bike trip to Rose Glen in search of ice cream. West played Sanborn in floor hockey and killed them. Everyone took some hard hits, including Brian Tisbert, Tim Smith, Adam Espinola, Mike Kelley, Jamie and Mike Grieco, Steve Arsenault, and Keith and Jason Masiello. Commando dodgeball was this week's favorite game, led by Alice, Charlie, and Oliver Gregory. Evan Rossignol, Spence Butcholz and Jonathan Fay had a great time at Wednesday's rollerskating party. The week ended with a pinata party with colorful pinatas made by Lauren McPhee, Ashley Tisbert, and Michelle Freguson.

South

When a deck of cards was brought to South Playground on week three, a new trend formed. "Archie" Poddar, Mike Sheehy, and Michael DeMella were the masters of concentration, and Mike and Steve Cavanugh, Anjali Poddar, Sophie and Elsie Eustis, Andrea Martin, Beverly Tseng and Alexis Sibelle were the go-fish pros.

Thanks to Mrs. Cavanugh, and Mrs. Sibelle, South School was provided with a few dozen cookies, which everyone decorated with tons of goodies.

Campers also enjoyed more food - pizza - at Roll-R-Way on Wednesday's field trip that featured rollerskating. South Schoolers are terrific skaters. Take Tiffany Gentile, Abbi Hermosa, and James Sibelle were all over the rink and they looked great. So did Mary Cassidy, and Marc and Gary Barnaby.

Camp Evergreen still accepting young campers

Kids may look forward to the freedom of summer, but when they run out of ideas for things to do, parents hear: "I'm bored. There's nothing to do." Camp Evergreen to the rescue.

According to Jim Loscutoff, the camp's owner and director, Evergreen offers a special camping experience that sends children home tired from the day's activities and excited about the next day's plans. Camping weeks are still available through Aug. 30.

Children ages 3 1/2 to 14 years can participate in 26 activities. Sports such as miniature golf, soccer, lacrosse, street hockey, tennis, volleyball, softball, basketball, boating, fishing and windsurfing are offered. For swimmers there's a Red Cross certificate program.

"Because we are located in Harold Parker State Forest, we are able to offer our novel nature programs, as well as a camping craft program where our campers learn outdoor survival," Mr. Loscutoff said.

The craft program is taught by Armand Lavoie, a teacher at Medford Elementary School.

Recently, 23 campers from the program qualified for the Red Cross canoeing program, and they will soon be going on a trip down the Ipswich River.

Campers also have the option of accompanying James Penny, a nature specialist from the University of Massachusetts at Lowell, who leads hiking expeditions to study rock formations around Salem Pond.

Those with a taste for the theater can try out for the Camp Evergreen run of The Wizard of Oz, with parts open for thousands of munchkins.

Other creative arts from woodworking to arts and crafts to music are offered at the camp.

The last two weeks of August are Indian Summer, run by Jimmy Loscutoff III, who takes on the moniker Chief Big Belly Button. During Indian Summer, Native Americans on staff will teach their crafts and folklore.

"Campers in this program learn the ways of the Indians and will begin to understand the respect Indians have for the balance of nature and its ways," Mr. Loscutoff said.

Camp Evergreen is in session from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with an extended-day program from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Transportation from most surrounding areas is provided for those enrolled for two or more weeks.

Call the camp office at 475-2502 for more information.

Heart Association meets

The annual planning meeting for the American Heart Association's Central Merrimack Valley branch was held this summer.

In attendance were the management committee: Ray Daniels of Derry, N.H., chairman; Jim Edholm of Andover, vice chairman; Cynthia Ryan of Andover, secretary; Ronnie Longwell of Andover, development chairwoman; and Marge Bradford of Andover, communications chairman. Mr. Daniels and registered nurse Karen Harvey, of Methuen, are delegates.

Andover Blue claims Suburban Pony League championship

Andover Blue bested Methuen 9-8 to win the Suburban Pony League championship. Blue's overall record is 13-2.

Blue scored three times in the last inning to win a hard-fought game. Down 8-6, Chris Sintros and Brian Tisbert walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Todd Harris, who tripled twice and scored twice, drove in Sintros on a close fielder's choice at first. Paul Allard, who had an earlier RBI bunt, laid a perfect bunt down the line to bring in Tisbert for the tying run. Allard sped to second on a stolen base. Toby Guzowski's single to right field won the championship as Allard's head-first slide beat the throw home.

Manger Joe Iarrobino and coaches Dick Allard and Steve Tisbert coached well as Blue compiled three stolen bases, four sacrifices, three run-scoring squeeze plays and numerous extra bases on hits.

Blue scored three times in the first inning to overcome a 2-0 deficit. Jeff Lembo's ball low and outside in the dirt scored Harris who had tripled to left. Allard and Matt Wolcott, who had both walked to load the bases, moved up. Alex Marshall's two RBI double to left center drove in the tying and go-ahead run.

Down 5-3 in the fourth, Pete Murphy walked and Rob Derba's bunt single put runners at first and second. Harris sacrificed both of them over. Allard's bunt single brought in Murphy. Toby Guzowski, who was two for three with three RBIs, singled to drive in Derba.

Again down 8-5 in the sixth, Blue cut the lead by another run as Harris led off with a triple, Allard walked and Guzowski's long, deep sacrifice fly to centerfield sent in Harris.

Matt Wolcott pitched in and out of jams going five and two-thirds innings.

Blue drew a bye until the semifinal playoffs Friday, Aug. 2, at 5:30 p.m. at Andover High School.

Andover Blue 14 - Reading 0

Toby Guzowski, Jeff Lembo and Justin Connors combined on a no-hit shutout with 10 strikeouts. Guzowski went two for three, two runs scored; Wolcott had two for two with three runs scored; Murphy went two for three with two runs scored and Dana McCann went one for one and three RBIs.

In the first, Todd Harris reached on an error, stole second, ran to third on the overthrow and scored on a passed ball. Pete Murphy followed the same script in the second with a leadoff single to score.

Matt Wolcott's line double started the fourth. Jeff Lembo's fielder's choice was turned into a two-base-throwing error as Wolcott scored. Lembo was driven in by Murphy's single.

In the fifth, Guzowski's single brought in Allard who was hit by a pitch and moved to second on a pickoff attempt. Wolcott's single to center scored Guzowski. Wolcott moved to second on a stolen base, to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Chris Sintros' single.

Allard picked off his third runner of the game in the visitor's sixth. McCann cleared the bases with a double. Jason Caverly and Justin Connors contributed RBI singles and Brian Tisbert and newcomer Ted Witman also singled.

Chelmsford short-circuits American Majors' tourney quest

By Rick Harrison

Pittsfield (Mass.), Bristol (Conn.) and Williamsport (Pa.) are once again merely dots on the map rather than stops on the tournament trail.

The Andover American Major Little League All-Stars (11- to 12-year-olds) had hoped to become better acquainted with each of those cities later this summer.

But there will be no State or Regional Tournament and no World Series for the District 14 champs.

Instead the locals got no further from home than Chelmsford, as District 13 titlist Arlington National short-circuited the Americans' travel plans last weekend.

In a game with more turning points and key at-bats than most, Andover American dropped a 6-4 decision to a team whose superiority was evident only on the Scully Field scoreboard.

The Bi-District loss eliminated the previously-potent Americans (64 runs in five games, 12.8 average) quicker than anticipated, while Arlington National advanced to the state quarterfinals.

Both teams had destroyed the opposition in District finals, previously-undefeated Andover crushing Lawrence Prospect Hill 18-1 and once-beaten Arlington mauling Wilmington 9-0.

Arlington National, 6-1 after beating Andover, appeared vulnerable after losing to Wilmington in the opening game of the District 13 championship round.

Conversely Andover American, which bowed out 5-1, seemed invincible during its power march through the District 14 field.

O'Sullivan battles

Righthander Mark O'Sullivan (1-1) went the distance for Andover and pitched well enough to win most games.

He yielded nine hits in five innings, but two were bunt singles, two were infield singles, and one was a pop-fly grand slam homer that deflected off the center fielder's glove.

O'Sullivan walked just one batter, on a

State champions gather for dinner

By Rick Harrison

Approximately one month after being confirmed as the best high school baseball team in the state, Massachusetts Division 1 champ Andover held its breakup awards dinner at the Andover Marriott.

The Golden Warrior players, family, friends and fans gathered for a grand finale to celebrate what had been accomplished over an impressive 10-week period last spring.

About all that was missing was a confetti-tossing motorcade down main street, as the team was also the guest of Gov. William Weld at the State House earlier in the day.

Pitcher/outfielder Dave Blank was named Most Valuable Player of the 25-1 squad, the best team in Andover High history and one whose successes can only be matched and never surpassed by future AHS squads.

The Golden Warriors, who won their final 22 games including the memorable 3-2 come-from-behind state final over Milford at Holy Cross, captured everything up for grabs including the Andover Invitational, Lawrence Invitational, Merrimack Valley Large School Division, EMass. North Sectional, EMass. Division 1 and State Division 1 crowns.

It was a clean sweep that will be hard to duplicate.

Blank, at 9-1, was a tri-ace of the pitching staff and the team's top power hitter.

The other major awards were also won by seniors.

Catcher Brett Hammond and outfielder Peter Arthur received the Coaches Awards.

First baseman/designated hitter Joe Iarrobino and outfielder/shortstop Chethan Harish earned 10th Player Awards.

Second baseman Matt Orlando and outfielder Bryan Smith were the team's Unsung Heroes.

P.J. Johnson was voted the Warriors' Best Defensive Outfielder, and Ryan Gidley captured the Best Reliever Award.

Blank will be on his way to the University of South Florida later this month, while Hammond has a football camp awaiting at UMass-Amherst. Iarrabino will play baseball at Providence, Orlando and Smith will continue their education at Trinity.

Next year's team will have a tough act to follow, although the Warriors will have an excellent returning nucleus as well as the top players from a winning junior varsity squad and an undefeated (15-0) freshman crew.

Heading the list of returning varsity players will be undefeated pitchers Jim Hanning (8-0) and Justin Hesenius (8-0), team batting champ Jim Landry (.390), shortstop Bobby Sheehan, first baseman Mike Daley, catcher Matt Daniels and third baseman Chris Lembo.

There is good news concerning Landry, who suffered a broken bone in his foot while flagging down a fly ball in the state final.

The swift outfielder missed the entire Legion season because of the injury, but made a complete recovery and returned to action last weekend with the Methuen Giants of the Eastern Mass. Bay State League.

Head Coach Dave Bettencourt finished the season with a five-year record of 88-28, a flashy .759 winning percentage.

Walsh, Caverly and others help out Andover Gold ends season in second place

By Rick Harrison

Pat Walsh pitched a pair of complete-game five-hitters, Tim Caverly notched two victories in relief, Tom Tanin blasted a pair of home runs, and key hits were delivered by Brian Flanagan and Dave Salafia as Andover Gold won four of its last six games to complete the Suburban Pony League regular season with a 7-7 record.

Gold finished second to North Reading in its division, four points behind the Braves who posted a 9-5 ledger.

AG, which won six of its last nine after a slow start, registered its most recent victories over Lynnfield (11-10), the Reading Rockets (4-3), Winthrop (9-2) and North Reading (10-3).

The final-week losses came to Andover Blue (12-5) and Stoneham (4-2), with Gold minus five players for the Stoneham finale.

Gold was scheduled to open the playoffs earlier this week against Lynnfield, with the winner of that game progressing to the second round against the survivor of the one-game knockout between Winthrop and the Reading Astros.

Should Gold win twice it would proceed to a best-of-3 division final series against North Reading, beginning tomorrow night (5:30 p.m.), with the victor there moving to a best-of-3 league championship series next week against the other division titlist.

Andover Gold has won a pair of Suburban Pony League titles, been in the championship series four of the last six years, and captured seven league titles (Suburban and Greater-Lawrence Babe Ruth League) in the last 13 summers.

Andover Gold, 4-3

AG recorded another come-from-behind victory at Andover High, spotting the Reading Rockets a 3-0 lead in the top of the first before rallying with two runs in the third, the tying marker in the sixth and the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Tim Caverly (2-2) relieved in the first and hurled two-hit shutout ball the rest of the way. He struck out three and issued just one walk.

Gold's comeback started with a one-out walk to Danny Hansberry in the third. Pat Walsh singled, the pair worked a double steal, Brian Flanagan hoisted a sacrifice fly to rescue Hansberry, and Tom Tanin spanked an RBI single to make it 3-2.

In the sixth Flanagan was hit by a pitch, stole second, and hustled around to score the equalizer when Tanin reached on a dropped third strike. Flanagan took third when the ball was dropped, and alertly raced home as the catcher tossed the ball to first trying to get Tanin.

Thirteen-year-old Dave Salafia was the hero in the seventh, lashing a game-winning two-strike single to score Sam McLellan who walked and took second on a passed ball.

Pat Walsh finished the game with two singles, Caverly added a hit, and McLellan reached base three times after being hit by a pitch and walking twice.

Defensive standouts for Gold were third baseman Walsh and centerfielder Salafia.

Andover Gold, 11-10

In this seesaw battle at Andover High, AG fell behind 5-0 in the second, tied it with five runs in the third, took a 9-5 lead in the fourth, and then needed a single run in the bottom of the seventh to break a 10-10 deadlock.

Tim Caverly was the winning pitcher in relief, and he also singled home the deciding run after Dave "Clutch" Salafia opened the seventh with a single and stolen base.

Danny Hansberry flexed his muscles with a triple and single, while Dave Kelmer had a big game offensively with a double, two singles and four RBI.

Contributing two hits each were Pat Walsh, Brian Flanagan and Tom Tanin.

Andover Gold, 9-2

Gold completed a sweep of the season series with Winthrop, using a five-run fourth as the springboard to a lopsided 9-2 triumph at Winthrop High.

Pat Walsh (3-1) went the distance for the win, scattering five hits, walking four and whiffing four.

AG jumped on top 2-0 in the first when Brian Flanagan rapped a two-out double and Tom Tanin blasted a two-run homer.

In the fourth Dave Salafia walked, Matt Marvin singled, Sam McLellan belted an RBI double, Dave Kelmer lofted a sacrifice fly (McLellan gunned down at third), Paul Auffermann singled, Jeff Hesenius was hit by a pitch, Danny Hansberry cracked a run-scoring double, and RBI singles were stroked by Pat Walsh and Flanagan.

In the fifth Matt Marvin hammered a long triple, and scored when the Winthrop catcher mishandled the throw home as Marvin attempted to stretch the blast into a home run.

Gold, a 3-0 winner over Winthrop the first time, added a final run in the sixth when Hesenius singled, Walsh walked and Flanagan rapped an RBI single.

Winthrop finally snapped a 12-inning scoreless streak against AG with a pair of harmless runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Flanagan put together his second perfect 4-for-4 game of the season, collecting three RBI, while Sam McLellan and Matt Marvin added two hits apiece and Dave Kelmer smacked a single.

McLellan made a superb running catch in left field with the bases loaded, while the entire infield played well defensively including Pat Walsh at close 3-2 pitch, and struck out three.

Arlington complete-game hurler Mike Kalivas, 4-0 in the tournament after this victory, surrendered just four hits including a pair of opposite-field bloop singles.

Kalivas, who faced just nine batters in the first three innings, struck out eight but also walked six and hit a batter (Al Kwon).

The key strokes for the Americans were a three-run homer in the fourth by Rob Kwon, and a two-out, two-strike RBI single by Matt Guenther that tied it 4-4 in the fifth.

Andover also left the bases loaded in the fifth and ended the game by having a runner thrown out at the plate.

The Americans had just one baserunner in the first three innings, and Al Kwon was gunned down at second by Arlington National right fielder Nick Kreuz as he tried to stretch his single into a double.

Arlington National wasted singles by Mark Russell and Jon Brandt in the first two innings, but broke through with four runs in the third.

Kreuz started the uprising with a one-out single to left, Russell lashed a vicious infield hit off Andover third baseman Rob Oppenheim's, and Andy Mingle loaded the bases with a sharp

Brandt then lofted what at first appeared to be a high sacrifice fly to medium-deep center, but as the Andover outfielder drifted back the ball kept carrying and eventually nicked off his glove and fell over the fence for a grand slam.

It marked the first time in six games the Americans had fallen behind by a significant amount (4-0), but they responded impressively one-half inning later.

Rob Kwon homers

Mark O'Sullivan reached safely when the shortstop's throw on his grounder pulled Arlington first baseman Mingle off the bag.

Kalivas retired the next two batters easily, but walked Al Kwon on a close 3-2 pitch.

That set the stage for Rob Kwon, who lashed a three-run line-drive homer over the leftfield fence to make it 4-3.

The roundtripper was Rob Kwon's second of the tourney and the team's 10th.

Momentum continued to shift as O'Sullivan retired Arlington 1-2-3 for the only time in the bottom of the fourth, the third out a line drive to shortstop Marc Tropeano.

Catcher Jason Monarca opened the fifth by drawing a walk, and with two down Steve Vickers walked on a 3-2 pitch from the suddenly-struggling Kalivas.

Matt Guenther then battled Kalivas through a lengthy at-bat before drilling a solid RBI single to centerfield, plating pinchrunner Ryan Games for a 4-4 tie.

Guenther fell behind 0-2 on the count, worked it to 3-2, lashed a 200-foot line drive off the base of the left field fence that was foul by inches, and then banded the clutch single.

Al Kwon was grazed by the next pitch to load the bases, but Kalivas bore down to retire the dangerous Rob Kwon on a high pop to second baseman Bob Saia.

In the Arlington fifth catcher Mark Russell hustled out a grounder to short for an infield hit, Andy Mingle dropped a sacrifice bunt that became an infield single when he also beat the throw, and another intended sacrifice bunt by Jon Brandt hugged the first-base chalk stripe for a single to put three aboard with no one out.

Russell raced across with the eventual winning run on a pitch that got past the catcher.

O'Sullivan struck out the next batter with the bases-loaded, but Mingle scored the insurance run on Justin Lazure's sacrifice fly.

The first two batters went quietly in the Andover sixth, but then Jason Monarca walked on a 3-2 pitch and Rob Oppenheim received another free pass on four pitches.

Dramatic finish

O'Sullivan followed with a bloop single down the rightfield line, but Arlington's Nick Kreuz fielded the ball cleanly and fired a strike to the plate. Catcher Mark Russell caught the throw head-high and slapped the game-ending tag on the sliding baserunner's leg for a dramatic finish.

Russell and Brandt both went 3-for-3 to lead Arlington National, while Andy Mingle had two hits.

Leftfielder Al Kwon and pitcher Mark O'Sullivan made nice running catches for Andover, while third baseman Rob Oppenheim and second baseman Steve Vickers also played strong defensive games for the Americans coached by Bob Henderson, Bill Vickers, Jim Oppenheim and Kevin Rourke.

The Americans bowed out after winning their third straight District 14 crown by rolling over Lowell Highland (12-2), Lowell Oliveria (14-1), Lawrence Prospect Hill (9-2), Tewksbury National (11-7) and Prospect Hill again (18-1).

third, Brian Flanagan at short, Danny Hansberry at second, Tom Tanin at first and Jeff Hesenius behind the plate.

Blue-Gold

Gold fell behind early and ran out of time against Blue, with a four-run seventh-inning rally falling well short in the 12-5 game at Andover High.

Matt Marvin, Tom Boutureia and Tim Caverly shared the pitching duties for AG.

Gold moved ahead briefly in the top of the first when leadoff batter Danny Hansberry singled, Pat Walsh banged a basehit off Blue starter Matt Wolcott's glove, both runners advanced on Brian Flanagan's infield out, and Hansberry raced across on a wild pitch.

The next 12 runs belonged to Blue, including a pair of long home runs by Todd Harris leading off the second and fourth innings.

In the four-run seventh Sam McLellan reached on an error, Tom Boutureia walked and Jeff Brammer singled to load the bases.

A pickoff put a dent in the rally, but with two down Pat Walsh was hit by a pitch to reload the bases, Flanagan drilled a two-run single, and Tom Tanin lashed a two-run double.

A pop-up by the next batter ended the uprising and the game.

Dave Salafia punched out two singles and other basehits came from Paul Auffermann and Sam McLellan.

Defensively Brian Flanagan played his usual steady game at shortstop.

Andover Gold, 10-3

AG bounced back smartly with a rain-splattered 10-3 rout of North Reading to gain a split of the season series.

Pat Walsh tossed another five-hitter, striking out four but experiencing some late-game control problems by walking seven.

Walsh was extra sharp at the start, facing just 10 batters in the first three innings, but he was forced to extricate himself from a pair of bases-loaded jams in the fourth and sixth.

Gold bolted to a 4-0 lead at North Reading High before the Braves could get an out.

Ignitor Danny Hansberry opened the game with a walk, promptly stole second and scored on Walsh's double. Brian Flanagan walked, he and Walsh pulled a double steal, and Tom Tanin clouted a mammoth three-run homer into no-man's land in left-centerfield.

In the second Jeff Hesenius singled, stole second, took third on Hansberry's single, and scored when Walsh hoisted a sacrifice fly.

The lead jumped to 7-0 in the third when Tim Caverly singled, Matt Marvin singled, both moved up on a passed ball, and Sam McLellan lined a two-run single.

In the fifth Walsh and Flanagan singled, again the pair worked a double steal, and a throwing error on Caverly's suicide squeeze bunt enabled both Walsh and Flanagan to score.

The final run came in the sixth, making it 10-1, as Paul Auffermann tripled and trotted home on Tom Boutureia's single.

North Reading notched solo runs in the sixth and seventh to complete the scoring.

Defensive standouts for Gold were 13-year-old second baseman Brad Batchelder and outfielders Dave Kelmer, Dave Salafia and Tom Boutureia.

The traditional DQ stop was made after the game.

Gold-Stoneham

A strong Stoneham crew had all it could handle from undermanned Gold before registering a 4-2 decision in the regular season finale for both at the Stoneham Boys' Club field.

Missing from the AG lineup for various reasons were Tom Tanin (basketball camp), Brian Flanagan (wedding), Pat Walsh (basketball), Pat Sharkey and Rick Mendez (injury).

Matt Marvin pitched well in defeat, yielding just four hits while fanning seven, walking five and hitting two batters.

Stoneham pushed across three runs in the bottom of the first, but managed just one more insurance tally in the sixth against Marvin. Gold chalked up single runs in the fourth and seventh stanzas.

In the fourth Marvin doubled, but he was thrown out trying to go to third on Dave Kelmer's infield hit. Kelmer stole second and scored on Paul Auffermann's double, but the inning ended when the Stoneham rightfielder stabbed Jeff Brammer's line drive to rob him of a hit.

In the seventh Sam McLellan was hit by a pitch, Auffermann walked and Brammer singled to load the bases. A strikeout, Jeff Hesenius's sacrifice fly and a groundout ended the game.

Brammer finished with two hits and defensive standouts were Brad Batchelder at second base, Hesenius at first and Tom Boutureia at catcher.

Correction

The July 25th article on the District 14 Little League tournament incorrectly identified the player who hit the long drive for Andover National in the fifth inning of its game with Chelmsford Fitts. In his last at-bat as a Little Leaguer, Alex Tommasino sent the center fielder back to the wall with his near-home run.

The Indian Ridge swimming and diving team defeated the perennial powerhouse, Cedardale, for the first time in 15 years.

Indian Ridge seized an early advantage in diving, which soon disappeared as they stumbled in the early swimming events. Finally, the Ridge trailed by 10 points with eight events remaining. They won seven of the last eight events and overcame the 10-point deficit to beat Cedardale 287-270.

Oceanside Bike Fest takes place in September

The Massachusetts chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society will hold its annual Oceanside Bike Fest one-day tour with a new twist. Bicyclists will be given the choice of either the traditional 25-50-100 mile South Shore tour Sunday, Sept. 8, or the new 35-55-100 mile North Shore tour Saturday, Sept. 7.

The southern route, sponsored by Plymouth Savings Bank, will start and finish at Duxbury Intermediate School and wind through the rocky shore of Scituate and Cohasset. The northern route begins at Beverly High School and takes cyclists through the estates and estuaries of the historic North Shore, including Cape Ann.

Checkpoints will be set up along the route, staffed with volunteers and supplied with healthy snacks. Road support will also be provided. A welcome back celebration cookout and entertainment will cap off both tours' activities.

Street Machine Association show benefits March of Dimes

Tickets are $15 for adults and $5 for children under 12. Call Lawrence General for tickets. ## HISTORY

Walking tour tells town's history as recorded by old cemeteries

By Barbara Thibault

Historic cemeteries are the subject of the next walking tour jointly sponsored by the Andover Historical Society and Department of Community Services Wednesday, Aug. 7.

The walk begins at the society's Amos Blanchard House, 97 Main St., promptly at 12:30 p.m. Lemonade and cookies are available at noon for those who come with a bag lunch to enjoy the ambiance of this old property.

Living in Andover, an historic town, stimulates interest in the past, appreciation for the present and concern for the future. One of the best resources is found in the early burying grounds: South Church, Christ Church and Chapel.

The South Parish Burying-yard was established in 1710 on a hilltop site to the rear of the meetinghouse. Winged death heads, cherubs and skulls adorn the slate grave-stones of Andover's early families.

Ann Blanchard's 1723 marker is a typical example. Layout was not planned in old burial grounds, though the headstones and footstones were often placed in an east-west location for religious reasons.

Christ Church Cemetery is part of a traditional New England ecclesiastical complex with church, rectory, school offices and burying yard. The Parish Register records the first burial in 1840. Family graves with names like Marland, Valpey, Tyer, Punchard and Byers represent not only the new Episcopal Society but also the recently arrived townspeople of the 19th century.

This cemetery and Chapel Cemetery at Phillips Academy contain a variety of stone materials, shapes and designs. Granite monuments and marble markers in Chapel Cemetery symbolize memorials to the Academy Hill Historic District's three institutions: Andover Theological Seminary and Phillips and Abbot academies.

These cemeteries illustrate American folk art, represent historic New England landscapes and contain tangible records of Andover's residents. More information can be found on location maps and family lists available in the society's Caroline Underhill Research Library.

The next planned walking tour will explore the Andover Village Industrial District Thursday, Aug. 29.

The cost of both walks is $2.

Also at the society is an ongoing survey of the cemeteries. The library's hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and Wednesday evenings until 8:30.

Editor's note: Barbara Thibault, who is the Andover Historical Society's curator of education, will lead both walks.

Town considers private landfill

Wood, brush and clippings were not considered as part of the town's trash collection contract, and changes to the contract might have to be considered if the increased burden becomes a problem. And if residents, or contractors, dump illegally, the town will have to pay to pick that up also.

Many of the roughly 40 Andover residents who operate landscape services in town met with Mr. McQuade and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski at the end of June to discuss options for keeping the landfill open, including paying higher fees, but to no avail.

The landscapers are now working on new proposals and plan to approach the town with their ideas in the next couple of weeks.

"We're in the stage of trying to work something out with them. We'd be willing to do anything," Mr. Martellucci said.

If they do not have any success, he said, the landscapers will put the question of reopening the landfill back to residents in the form of a warrant article at a special town meeting in the fall, if there is one.

Rep. Coon's office has student loan information

Information on the Family Education Loan, a below-market rate loan program by the Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority, is available through State Rep. Gary Coon's office. Fifty-two participating colleges and universities in Massachusetts offer the program, which has a 9.25 percent interest rate for the 1991-'92 academic year.

To obtain a brochure, call the representative's Boston office, (617) 722-2575, or write Rep. Gary Coon, Statehouse, Room 146, Boston 02133.

The 9.25 percent rate means families pay only $10.95 each month per thousand dollars borrowed for the loan's 15-year repayment period.

Judge Fenton to head state courts

Judge Fenton will complete the remainder of Chief Administrative Justice Arthur M. Mason's term. It is a seven-year term that begins for Judge Fenton Jan. 7 when Judge Mason reaches age 70, the mandatory retirement age.

For three successive fiscal years the state courts have suffered major cuts in its appropriations, according to court personnel. Due to the cooperative efforts of the administrative justices of the trial court, judges, clerks, clerk-magistrates, employees and employee unions, the judicial branch has managed almost all in state government to end each fiscal year without a deficit. This successful effort to live within the budget has come about because of the leadership of Chief Administrative Justice of the Trial Court Arthur M. Mason, according to the court.

The budget for Fiscal Year 1992 reduces judicial branch appropriations by more than $6.5 million dollars, according to the courts.

The press release from the courts described Judge Fenton as an "experienced administrative justice."

The justices have chosen Chief Justice Fenton not only because of his "impressive credentials" as a lawyer, teacher, scholar, judge and court administrator, but because of his
